THERE are certain fixed laws which govern our HEALTH. Alter these laws, infringe upon them in any way, and disease stalks on apace; and yet how few are there who are sufficiently impressed with this truth; or, being impressed with it, how few resist temptation? How few, when the improvidence of their conduct is shown to them, turn from the path that leads to death? And again how few are there who, when once they have contracted a habit or vice, are able to shake it off? How miserable is that unfortunate being so circumstanced! He knows not where to turn for advice—he dare not confide in his friend, he fears to trust his secret to his family physician: thus the disease or vice eats like a canker-worm into his soul—he becomes an emaciated, gloomy, melancholy, consumptive man; or his intellect gives way, he evades society, his mind becomes less retentive than before, and in a short time idiotcy commences.

SCAB IN SHEEP.—The attention of sheepowners is invited to ALLEN'S DISINFECTING COMPOUND SOLUTION for the exterminating of scab. This solution embraces the most efficient remedies ever used for the cure of this disease, and for utterly destroying the infection wherever the sheep are returned after dip.
The components include purifying and cleansing ingredients, which beneficially affect the growth, colour, and fabric of the wool, and leave only the best possible results on the health and condition of the sheep.
No other specific in use offers the same security for the eradication of disease, or can cure with such decided advantage to both fleece and condition.
TESTIMONIALS:—
From the Chief Inspector of Sheep for New South Wales.
Sydney Union Club,
1st August, 1863.
W. H. Allen, Sydney.
Sir,—In answer to yours of yesterday, I beg to state that I have carefully examined for the last time the seven sheep infected with scab which were dipped in your specific at Parramatta, on the 16th of May, and also on the 4th of June. I now consider them so far free from disease as to invite the inspection of any competent parties concerned from not being able to find any traces of scab, and from the wool having grown over the infected parts.
I may further state that the cure of them is rather a matter of surprise to me, from the circumstance of their having been kept in the same stable and yard from which they were dipped, they consequently being subject to constant contact with the scab, which would have propagated were it not for the disinfectants used.
The dipping apparatus which was used I also consider was very imperfect—a tin vessel being used instead of a wooden one.
However, I believe you may show them to any competent persons that understand the disease and its cure, and they will say the same of them I do.
I remain, Sir, your obedient servant,
S. B. WALKER,
Chief Inspector of Sheep, New South Wales.

This is to certify that Mr. W. H. Allen dipped my sheep once with his specific for the cure of scab. They are all now perfectly cured, and open to inspection. The sheep were dipped on the 30th January, 1863.
PHILIP DONOHUE.

TESTIMONIAL.—Government Analytical Laboratory.—I hereby certify that I have submitted to chemical analysis two samples of Kruse's Fluid Magnesia, forwarded to this laboratory for examination by the manufacturer, John Kruse, Esq., chemist and druggist, at 184, Bourke-street East. I have also examined two samples of the same antacid and aperient medicine purchased by me at two different pharmaceutical establishments at Melbourne.
I find the average quantity of pure Carbonate of Magnesia in these four samples to amount to 12 27 grains per fluid ounce; there is also free carbonic acid in quantity, but the exposure of the medicine, under ordinary circumstances, does not lead to any deposit of the carbonate worthy of notice.
I have further examined samples of Dinneford's Fluid Magnesia, and Murray's Fluid Magnesia, obtained by me at shops in Melbourne.
The former contained, on the average, 6 84 grains of Carbonate of Magnesia per fluid ounce, or about one-half of that present in Kruse's Fluid Magnesia; the latter contained, on the average, 5 86 grains per fluid ounce, or considerably less than one-half.
From the foregoing results, it is obvious that Kruse's Fluid Magnesia is a very superior therapeutic agent to any variety of the same medicine in the market.
I may add that in the use of Kruse's Fluid Magnesia as an aperient, its combination with the Acidulated Lemon Syrup, from the same establishment, furnishes a very agreeable and refreshing draught.

WATSON'S VEGETABLE WORM POWDERS.—The original and only really useful remedy for effectually removing Worms from old and young. Thousands can bear testimony to their beneficial effects. Each packet (price 1s.) contains three powders. JOHN WATSON, druggist, 593, Brickfield-hill.

WHAT IS CHLORODYNE?—Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S Chlorodyne is a liquid taken in drops according to age. It invariably relieves pain, of whatever kind, creates a calm refreshing sleep, allays irritation of the nervous system, when all other remedies fail, leaving no bad effects like opium or laudanum, and can be taken when none other can be tolerated. Its value in saving life in infancy is not easily estimated; a few drops will subdue the irritation of teething, prevent and arrest convulsions, cure whooping cough, spasms, and flatus at once.
Among invalids it allays the pain of neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, &c. It soothes the weary achings of consumption; relieves the soreness of the chest, cough, and expectoration; and cures all chest affections, such as asthma, bronchitis, palpitation, &c. It instantly checks diarrhœa, alvine discharges, spasms, and colics of the intestines, &c.

THE BEST REMEDY FOR COLDS, COUGHS INFLUENZA, MEASLES, FEVER, &c.—NEWBERY'S DR. JAMES' POWDER is the best and most renowned remedy, in this changeable climate, for colds, coughs, measles, and influenza, which carry off thousands yearly, and are but modified types of fever caused by obstructed perspiration. A medicine like NEWBERY'S DR. JAMES' POWDER is particularly valuable, by promoting a gentle perspiration, a single dose causing immediate relief, and in rheumatism, ague, and asthma has been proved most useful. The experience of 116 years has increased its reputation, both with the public and medical profession, who prescribe it largely, while by its ease of administration it is unsurpassed as a family medicine. One bottle will be sufficient. Price one guinea per bottle.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are conceded by eminent physicians to be the most soothing and health-ful tonic known. They restore the appetite, regulate the liver, and invigorate the body, without firing the blood; nor like quinine, producing medicinal disease. They are agreeable to the taste, and taken occasionally as a beverage are a certain preventive against epidemics. Their composition is no secret, being a solution of vegetable tonics in the most wholesome of all stimulants—the purified spirit of rye. All who try them, like them. Sold by prominent druggist and wine merchants, STANFORD and CO., sole agents, 208, Pitt-street, Sydney.

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA is the only remedy known which infallibly and thoroughly purifies the blood. In cases of scrofula, old sores, abscesses, tumours, pimples, ulcers, cancerous sores, erysipelas, sore throat, all skin diseases, and particularly in rheumatism, however aggravated by neglect, it is guaranteed to effect a thorough cure. Taken now and then as a preventive, it fortifies the system against disease, and invigorates the vital powers to a degree which must be experienced to be believed. Sold by leading druggists everywhere.

BRISTOL'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS, a safe cathartic for the most debilitated. They create an appetite, revive the mental energies, and operate as a healing balm on the irritated stomach and bowels. They act in harmony with nature, regulating the liver, and promoting the general vigour of the system without violence, pain, or nausea. They are purely vegetable, and strongly anti-bilious, their active principle being podophillyn, the great substitute for mercury. No person who has used them has been disappointed in the effects. Sold by all respectable druggists.
J. and E. ROW, sole agents, 217, Pitt-street, Sydney.

MURRAY and LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER communicates to the handkerchief the exquisite fragrance of a tropical bouquet. Its odour is the breath of the rarest Floridian flowers gathered in their prime, and is more delicious as well as more permanent than the scent of the finest Rhenish Eau de Cologne. It relieves headache, prevents fainting, is a pleasant tooth-wash, and adds to the luxury of the bath. Diluted with water it removes the irritation caused by shaving and by the bites and stings of insects. For sale by all leading druggists and perfumers.
J. and E. ROW, sole agents, 217, Pitt-street, Sydney.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.—CONSUMPTION may be cured (when not in extreme cases) by administering OZONIZED COD LIVER OIL. Your medical man will very properly tell you that the first thing to be done towards the cure of a consumptive patient is the reduction of the pulse. Ozonized Cod Liver Oil is the only agent that will reduce the pulse to its proper standard, and at the same time keep up the strength of the system.
Numerous cases of its success at the Hospital for Consumption, Brompton (near London), may be seen in the LANCET of July, 1859, &c., &c.
To be had of all chemists and druggists, and JOHN CALDWELL, Pitt-street.

COPE'S CELEBRATED STATIONS, Lower Macquarie, at the Mole.—PITT and SULLIVAN have received instructions from the executors of the late Joseph Cope, Esq., to dispose of, by private sale, all those valuable and well known stations situate on the Lower Macquarie, at the Mole, in the Wellington district, together with 8000 (more or less) carefully bred quiet cattle of the well known C O P. brand, with stock-horses, stores, &c.
The property consists of 11 blocks of land, all adjoining each other, and a never-failing supply of water, having a river frontage of about 17 miles; in addition to which are two creeks (the Narrow and Crooked) running through these stations. The improvements consist of men's huts, stock-yards, &c., distant from each other about seven miles, all in complete working order. The grazing capabilities of these stations are equal to 15,000 head of cattle, or 50,000 sheep; and having been selected by the late proprietor, whose judgment in the choice of runs was universally acknowledged, is of itself a sufficient guarantee of their high character; and as he devoted many years to their improvement, regardless of expense, they have become conjointly one of the best and most complete pastoral properties in the colony—and, in fact, fat stock have always been procurable from these stations in the most unfavourable seasons.
With the butchers the cattle are held in high estimation, the breed having been particularly attended to; the bulls being constantly changed, and purchased from the best breeders, such as the Messrs. Lee, Cox, Christie, A. A. Company, &c. Another great advantage with regard to the capabilities of these stations is, that from their being all in one block, and so extensive, the proprietor can always keep the cattle from trespassing.
The vendors strongly recommend this property to capitalists, as so favourable an opportunity for profitable investment seldom occurs.
Terms easy, on application to PITT and SULLIVAN, George-street, Sydney.

FIRST-CLASS CATTLE and STATIONS.—PITT and SULLIVAN have received instructions from John Dargin, Esq., to dispose of by private sale those well-known stations, Mungery and Gunnareu, situated on the Bogan, in the Wellington District; Mungery has eight miles frontage to the east side of the Bogan River, and extending for five miles back; on the western side it has ten miles frontage, and extending back seven miles to the Back Creek, which bounds it on the west.
Gunnareu is situated on the western side of the back creek, which divides it from Mungery, it has five miles frontage to the creek, and five miles back, bounded on the west by unoccupied country for thirty or forty miles good country, but only having water on it in the winter or after heavy rain; Mungery and Gunnareu are the finest myall, saltbush, and white box country; and form one of the best watered stations on the Bogan, there having been plenty of water during the late severe drought. Gunnareu has a large yard on it for mustering from the back country. Mungery has a good four-roomed cottage, with kitchen, store, &c., a shingled cottage for the overseer, and a good stockman's hut, &c. The yard is exceedingly large, having every necessary for drafting and managing a large herd properly; there are three paddocks, one very large one, and two smaller ones; in the whole of them there being ten or twelve miles of fencing, principally three-rail. The stock for years have been improved by bulls bred by Mr. Lee, and there are several young bulls bred by him running with the herd at present; also, a great many spayed cows. Mungery is 130 miles distant from Bathurst, in which it has a good as well as a not distant market. Mungery and Gunnareu will be sold with 2000 head (more or less) of choice well-bred cattle above six months old, all under six months given in.
Full particulars on application to PITT and SULLIVAN, George-street, Sydney.

FORD BROTHERS' PATENT WASHING HATS.—Victorian Exhibition, 1861, First Class; London International Exhibition, 1862, award for originality and novelty.—Our theory of a hat for a warm climate is that it should be absorbent and ventilating throughout. If it possess these qualities it must be capable of being washed, otherwise it will be speedily destroyed or rendered unfit for wear. The process for rehabilitating the hat must also be so simple that ordinary laundresses can block and press them. Our zinc block makes this easy and certain. The use of these hats subjects the head to the same healthful conditions as other parts of the body, i. e., cotton and flannel are brought into direct contact with the part covered. The body of the hat consists of five to seven wove materials, of which one is all wool flannel, the external material being linen. The luxury to the wearer is such that any person adopting them will not readily be persuaded to wear any other. Their colour is so adapted to all styles of men that in summer it is as becoming as black is at all other seasons, while their durability is so great that with ordinary care they must wear two or three times as long as any other hat made. In view of these desirable qualities we confidently expect these hats with Australians will become national.

Directions for washing, blocking, and pressing:

The size of both hat and block is marked on them. The hats are to be washed in the tub, not on the block, and should be scalded, not boiled, then stiffen them with white starch, and draw them hard down on the block; dry them in the sun; when nearly dry strip them from the block and pull them down again till dry, then rub more starch into the brim and press the brim only on the top side while warm from the iron, cut the brim in the shape preferred. The helmet should be pressed from the under side. The zouave is blocked on the explorer block, and the peak pulled out, the curtain only being ironed. These instructions are sufficient to render a laundress expert with one or two trials.

IMPORTING TIGERS IN JAPAN.—A Dutch subject residing in Japan imported a couple of tigers for the purposes of exhibition, but here, as in all other novelties, there was an impediment to be got over on the part of the Japanese authorities. Whether they objected because tigers were not in "the tariff," or on some other equally valid ground, certain it is they did object; and as the importer was a Dutch subject, it became a matter of discussion with the Dutch consul, who solved the difficulty with great readiness. When the Japanese custom-house and the consul seemed to have come to a dead-lock, the question arose what was to be done with the article. The custom-house would not pass it, the ship could not take it back. What was to be done with the beautiful beast? "Oh, very well," said the consul, seeing it was time to make a last stroke for his countryman's merchandise, "since you say it is impossible to allow it to be entered and sold, there is nothing left but for the merchant to lose his money, and let the beast out." "Let it loose!" exclaimed the officials, in various tones of horror and dismay, "why, it will eat us all up." "Really, I don't know; perhaps he is not very hungry; but in any case I cannot compel the merchant to keep him." It is superfluous to add that all interdict on his sale was soon removed, and instead of making a meal of the Japanese, he served as a feast to the eyes of thousands in the different cities, at so many cash per head.—The Capital of the Tycoon.

Steal! a fico for the phrase!

ANCIENT PISTOL.

And I should have won, for it's not over yet!
IRISH LETTER.

THE bushranging fever continues in its acute stage. Near its head-quarters, which are (or rather, lately were) at Bathurst, the symptoms have indeed been more violent than ever. With increased audacity on the part of the chief gang of ruffians, there appears to be a more utter prostration of courage on the part of those who have property to defend. Armed visits are promised or anticipated—yet no storekeeper or householder, with the single exception of Mr. Wilding, appears to have offered resistance, or made his dwelling in fact—as it is in law—his castle. They forget the advantage of a quiet shot from behind cover, and seem to say—illogically but not unnaturally—"If the police cannot resist these villains, how can we?" Panic in the immediate neighbourhood of the depredators is answered by querulous excitement throughout the colony. The inhabitants of each rural district dread that it may be the next visited, and feel it to be a terrible thing, as well as matter for just indignation, that robbers should be left at large who may possibly rob them. Even in Sydney, which seems in no present danger of invasion, the tidings of the last "bailing up," divide public attention with the latest rumours of the new Ministry. The Press teems with comments and suggestions, more or less rational—half the writers blaming the police for their inefficiency, and the other half finding excuses for them in an exaggerated view of their disadvantages and difficulties. One talks as though to shoot or capture a bushranger were simply impossible, while another seems to think it a matter of course—a mere bagatelle. On the whole, however, we think public opinion is arriving at just conclusions (in many respects, we beg to say, anticipated by ourselves) as to the defects in the present system. The mock-military organisation of the force seems to be generally given up as indefensible. Even Captain M'LERIE must by this time be pretty well convinced that playing at soldiers is not a winning game under the circumstances. There is a call for a force of young stockmen—a sufficient admission that our troopers ought to have some practice in bush riding. Indeed no one now denies that the police ought to be good bushmen, and familiar with the country in which they have to act, save a few croakers, who dolefully contend, that as a policeman has little chance of knowing his way about the country as well as Hall or Gardiner, he had better not know it at all. Our suggestion respecting the necessity of training the police to the use of fire-arms is finding fresh advocates. Nay, we do not even despair of seeing a measure openly called for at which a few months since we durst not have hinted; we mean an Act for the registration of arms. Handsome rewards, again, are offered for bringing in the leading criminals, dead or alive. All these things tend to strengthen the hands of the law, and to increase the probability that its violators will ere long be brought to justice, in spite of revolvers, stolen horses, and all the sinews of predatory war.

But the most hopeful circumstance in the present condition of the struggle is the temporary silence in Macquarie-street. Whatever we have to hope or to fear from a change of Ministers at such a crisis, there is a clear gain in this temporary check to the loquacious curiosity of meddlesome patriots. How can the most active Minister effectively concert measures with the heads of the police force, if every message sent or received is to be the subject of enquiry and discussion among a lot of people, three-fourths of whom have no idea of Government except as a thing to be talked about? If a Colonial Secretary cannot intimate to a public officer what he is expected to do with the means at his disposal without the terms being canvassed in the hearing of the public, nothing but pique and misunderstanding can be expected. Debates like that of Tuesday last—however indignant some of our stump orators may be at the statement—are all in favour of the bushranging interest.

But it is not only by forcing unseasonable disclosures that our noisy democrats encourage the evil they profess to deplore. Is this a time for theorising on the abolition of capital punishments, when our banditti have avowedly dismissed all scruples as to homicide, and

"Make no more of lives of men,
Than lives of larks in season?"

We are told in the same breath that policemen ought to be ready at the shortest notice to risk their lives in the attempt to capture such desperadoes, and that if they succeed, the lives of the captured ought to be held sacred. Not to dwell on the encouragement which such teaching holds out to cattle-stealers in training for "the road," what must be its effects on our policemen? Some few, and but few, for they are mostly gallant fellows, and only want fair play—may content themselves with the view of duty ascribed (we trust incorrectly) to one of their superintendents, and draw their pay without being "prepared to sacrifice their lives." But the general result must be, that armed bushmen will be "shot down like dogs" when they might be taken alive. They will have ceased to be, like pirates, liable to the yardarm—and we well know how the firing used to be kept up by mistake, after a privateer had struck. Happily, however, the agitation for securing murderers from the last penalty of the law has not yet gained strength enough to raise much either of hope or fear.

But of all the varieties of Parliamentary encouragement bestowed on our brigands, we have heard none more mischievous than Dr. Lang's apologetic sally. That soi-disant saintly, prophetic, and apostolic personage has a good word for everybody who has had the misfortune to make himself obnoxious to the law. According to his view, the present epidemic of freebooting is quite en regle—almost a matter of course—a mere phase in our constitutional history. As for the robbers themselves, they are not such bad fellows after all. Gilbert and O'Meally are the Robin Hood and Rob Roy of Australia; the "most comparative" doctor does not inform us which is which, thinking (we presume) like the puppet showman, that the public "pays their money, and 'as a right to choose." But we do most indignantly protest, on the ground both of historical justice and of public morality, against such an attempt to make modern villains interesting by associating their names with those of outlaws of other days, who live in story and song, not for the crimes they committed, but for their kindly acts and determined resistance to tyranny. Where are the forest laws that have driven Gilbert to the greenwood? who are the Norman oppressors who have roused his Saxon resentment? What resemblance does O'Meally—a thief linked with thieves, a murderer with murderers, only by the casual bond of fellowship in plunder—bear to the gallant leader of a cruelly proscribed clan? Let Dr. Lang's parallel once be admitted as a true one, and these and half a dozen more such ruffians, at whose crimes society stands aghast, will have an irresistible claim to admiration and sympathy. How many persons will be weak enough to accept so monstrous a fallacy, it is not for us to say; it is certainly no sufficient defence of a gross misrepresentation deliberately published to urge that the speaker is too well known to be believed. But the queerest part of the business is, that the rev. apologist does not really believe in his own defence—has no real sympathy with his bushranging clients. Probably he has at heart a profound contempt for men who are weak enough to tread the dangerous ways of rapine, when the "primrose path" of swindling might have led them, with little or no risk, to affluence and a spurious respectability. For aught he cares, the whole gang might be hanged as Haman to-morrow. But our clerical advocate seems to consider himself as holding a general retainer on behalf of colonial mauvais sujets of every class. Ask him why he takes so much pains to shift the landmarks of right and wrong, and perplex the moral sense of the community; he might reply with Shakspere's fat knight, "'Tis my vocation, Hal—'tis no sin for a man to labour in his vocation."

A GOOD MOTTO.—Lady Vere, the wife of Horatio Vere, Baron of Tilbury, an illustrious general who flourished in the reigns of James I. and Charles I., lost her mother only three days after her birth, and when about eight years of age her father also died. Thus early was she left an orphan; but when bereaved of both her parents, so graciously had she been preserved and maintained in her infancy and early years, as well as in her subsequent life, by the providence of Him who is the Father of the fatherless, that she chose for her motto the words God will provide. This motto, so effectual as a means, when duly realised, for banishing distracting cares, and for producing calm trust in the providence of God in the most distressing outward circumstances, she wrote upon most of the books in her library.—Memorable Women of the Puritan Times.

BONNETS.—We now come to a very important point in the realms of fashion, the bonnets that are to be worn this spring. A change is taking place in this branch of female attire; the shape called Marie Stuart, which already more than once had been attempted, but never obtained a general success, seems, at last, likely to be generally adopted. Ladies are really tired of wearing the very unbecoming bonnets fashion has forced them for the last year or two. These appeared every season to become higher and more peaked in front, so that, with the immense quantity of flowers, feathers, and ornaments of all sorts heaped upon them, they gave a most preposterous, and, in many cases, grotesque appearance to the female head. Happily, a modification in this singular shape is at hand; bonnets are henceforth to have their point at the top slightly bent forward on to the forehead, but they are still likely to be very much over-trimmed. We will now describe a few of those we have seen prepared by a very celebrated modiste. A crape bonnet, of the shade of light brown, or fawn-colour—known under the name of Lavalliere—the front gathered, the curtain in white net, covered over with black lace, and a strip of crape cut on the cross placed round the edge. On one side a scarf of black lace, pleated on the top in a double ruche; then a long ostrich feather curling round the front of the bonnet, and fastened with a small tuft of marabout feathers. Inside, a bunch of small rosebuds, with moss; strings of ribbon the colour of the crape. Nearly all the bonnets one sees just now are made of crape, of different shades of colour; it is quite the material for the demisaison. Silk bonnets are never very pretty or becoming, unless partly made with net or crape, or covered over with lace. The ornaments mostly chosen are either tufts or feathers, or very large bunches of flowers, plentifully mixed with moss and long grasses. Indeed, it is quite extraordinary to what an extent moss is used just now in the trimming of bonnets; we have scarcely seen any on which this favourite herb was not more or less freely lavished. In summer, tulle bonnets are much preferred, being lighter and more agreeable to wear. We have already seen some, but with a mixture of velvet or silk, which renders them better suited to the spring season. One was trimmed round the front and curtain with a double row of small bows of black velvet edged with white. Tufts of white daisies, mixed with moss and grasses, were placed, a little on one side, inside and outside. Another was ornamented with a border composed of small marabout feathers, curling all round the front and over the edge of the curtain. A fall of black lace half hid the top of the bonnet, and formed a bow with ends on one side. Inside leaves of black lace were mingled with moss-roses. Horsehair bonnets are being prepared for the summer in all shades of colour. Many will be trimmed very simply, with a quilling of ribbon of the same colour as the bonnet, and with a bunch of flowers or bright-coloured ribbon inside. These bonnets are much prettier, and much pleasanter to wear, than the straw ones; besides which, they are much more durable, and last several summers when cleaned and fresh trimmed. For round hats two shapes now prevail—the high crown, with a very narrow and flat brim all round; and the Marie Antoinette style, with crown much lower, and brim slightly turned up on each side, and bent down a little both in front and behind. The former are made generally in black straw, and trimmed with the tips of curled feathers, red and white mixed with black, and placed in a tuft in front, the crown being trimmed with black velvet without any ends. The latter are in white straw, and lined in pink, blue or lilac silk; an ornament in straw is carried round the crown, and a bunch of flowers, mingled with moss, heath, or long grasses, placed in front; one large flower, or a bunch of small ones, is placed on one side, under the brim. When the hat is trimmed with ears of corn, mixed with a few cornflowers, as it is called a "moissonneuse." Hats are very much the same for little boys and little girls; the crowns are always very high, and somewhat in the shape of a cone. The brim is narrow and flat. The front is trimmed with ostrich or pheasant's feathers and bows of ribbon. For very young children the crown is less high, and the brim turned up a little on each side; these are often lined with coloured silk, and trimmed under the brim with bows of ribbon.—Giles' Royal Review of Fashion.

MUNICIPALITY OF WATERLOO.—The Council met on Saturday, 26th September, at half-past three o'clock p.m. Present—the chairman (Mr. W. Bryant), Councillors William Moon, Oates, Wilson, David Moon, Sparks, and Steward. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Mr. O. B. Ebsworth, which was referred to the improvement committee for their consideration and report. A letter was also read from seven residents of George-street, asking the council to adopt some means to prevent the traffic on the footpath at the corner of Raglan and George streets, which was referred to the improvement committee for their consideration and report. Councillor David Moon, as chairman of the improvement committee, presented a report adopted by that committee, recommending "that the footpath be formed and kerbed on the west side of the Botany Road, from Raglan-street in a northerly direction, at a cost not to exceed £12—such work to be completed according to the plan," and moved that it be received. Councillor Steward seconded the motion; carried. Councillor Sparkes moved "That the bailiff be and is hereby removed from his office." Councillor Wilson seconded the motion. Carried. Sundry accounts, amounting to £92 3s. 6d., were passed and ordered to be paid. Councillor William Moon moved, "That £15, in addition to a previous vote of £50, be expended to complete Bullinaming-street." Councillor Wilson seconded the motion. Carried. Councillor Stewart moved, "That in future this council hold its meetings on Thursday evenings, at seven p.m. instead of Saturdays as at present." Councillor William Moon seconded the motion. Councillor David Moon moved, as an amendment, "That in future the council meet on Saturday evenings at half-past four o'clock p.m." Councillor Sparkes seconded the amendment, which was carried. On the original motion being put, councillor Steward called for a division: for the motion councillors Steward and William Moon; against it, councillors Sparkes, Oates, Wilson, and David Moon. The original motion was therefore negatived. Councillor William Moon moved, "That £5 be expended in Garden-street south of Raglan-street," councillor Wilson seconded the motion; carried. Councillor David Moon moved, "That £10 be expended at Sparkes' Bridge," councillor Oates seconded the motion; carried. Councillor David Moon moved, "That two stones be provided for the culvert on the Botany Road, one stone at the corner of Pitt and Buckland streets, and one stone crossing Raglan-street opposite Mr. Cook's. Councillor Oates seconded the motion. Carried. Councillor Oates moved, "That £4 be expended in repairing the footpath in Raglan-street, from George-street to Pitt-street, and a portion in George-street." Councillor Wilson seconded the motion. Councillor Steward moved, as an amendment, "That £5 be expended at Austen's corner, in George-street." Councillor William Moon seconded the amendment, which was negatived on the original motion being put. Councillor Steward called for a division. For the motion—Councillor Sparkes, Oates, Wilson, and David Moon. Against it councillors Steward, and William Moon, the original motion was therefore carried, and the Council then adjourned. On Wednesday, October 7th, the Quarterly Meeting of the Council was held, at twelve o'clock, noon. Present—The Chairman, Councillors Oates, Sparkes, West, and William Moon. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Mr. G. Tomlinson, the request of which could not be granted. The balance sheet for the quarter was read and received. A vote of thanks to the Auditors, was moved and carried unanimously, and the council then adjourned.

REGISTRAR-GENERAL'S REPORT TO THE HON. THE COLONIAL SECRETARY.

(Concluded.)

PART V.

PRODUCTION.

35. We come now to the consideration of our mining operations. And first as to Collieries, which afford evidence of unwonted activity. It is satisfactory to find that the production of coal has more than recovered the ground it lost in 1861, owing to the disagreement which unfortunately prevailed during a part of that year, between the principal coal companies and their miners. The number of mines in actual working operation in 1862 is stated at thirty, producing 476,522 tons of coal, of the value of £305,234. It seems that no less than fifteen new mines have been added to the number which were in operation in 1861, and that the result was an increased production of 124,455 tons.

The development of the coal fields of the colony during the last decade is a very remarkable feature in these returns. The production of the mines for the five years 1853 to 1857, was 750,921 tons, whilst the production for the five years 1858 to 1862, was 1,712,161 tons, showing an increase of very little short of a million tons in the five years.

The export of coal in 1862 amounted to 308,782 tons, against 207,780 tons the previous year. Our principal customers are Victoria, South Australia, and New Zealand, and large shipments are made to China and other foreign countries. The shipments to the neighbouring colonies average about two-thirds of the total exports.

The price of good screened coal at Newcastle ranged from 12s. to 14s. per ton.

36. A silver mine was opened near "Moruya," on the Southern coast of the colony, on the 13th August 1862, and 266 tons of ore were taken from it before the end of the year, but the value is not stated.

The Fitzroy iron mine was not worked.

Two copper mines in the District of Orange produced 2200 tons of ore, of the value of £12,000 sterling.

37. The total results of our Gold Mining operations in the year manifest increased success.

The Western Gold Fields more than doubled the production of the previous year, whilst the Northern and Southern Gold Fields show a decrease, as will be seen by the following statement, viz.:—

Gold Fields.	1861. Ounces.	1861. Value.	1862. Ounces.	1862. Value.
Western	134 375	£513 970	321 720	£1 219 752
Northern ..	35 266	132 931	38 242	106 065
Southern ..	232 993	907,908	225 576	886 717
Totals ..	402 634	£1 554,629	575 538	£2 212 534

The increase in the quantity of gold produced was 172 904 ounces, in value £657,905

The quartz reefs in the Western districts afford evidence of extreme richness; and it is probable that their resources will receive extraordinary development, through the application of capital and machinery which is being brought to bear upon them.

38. Connected with the production of gold there is a Return, No. 143, included in Part 7, shewing the number of miners' rights and business licenses issued in 1862, to which in this place it may be interesting to refer, as evidencing the increased amount of industry engaged in bringing about the results set forth in the last paragraph. The following figures represent the number of licenses issued to miners in each of the two last years, viz.:—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.	Decrease.
Western Gold-fields ...	7,050	17,183	10,133	...
South-western Gold-fields.	6,118	4,517	...	1,601
Southern Gold-fields ...	1,242	1,543	301	...
Northern Gold-fields ...	1,834	1,795	..	39
Totals... ...	16,244	25,038	10,434	1,640

There is thus shown to have been a net increase of 8794 upon the number of licenses issued in 1861.

Assuming that each miner's right or license represents an individual, and that its possessor was occupied during the whole year in the search for gold, it would appear by the return of production that, as nearly as possible, 23 ounces of the precious metal (supposing it to be equally divided) would fall to the lot of each man. This, at the Mint value (£3 17s. 10½d. per oz.), would produce an average wage of £88 13s per annum, or at the rate of £1 14s. 1d. per week per man.

AGRICULTURE.

39. There is no subject of more general interest than the occupation and cultivation of the soil. It has been my endeavour, since the statistics of the colony were placed in my hands, to render the agricultural returns as perfect as possible, so that the annual progress made in this important branch of industry might be clearly indicated. I have endeavoured, on the present occasion, to distinguish freeholders from leaseholders, and the extent of holding owned or occupied by each. I have tried, moreover, to ascertain, in addition to the extent of land in cultivation, the quantity enclosed but not in cultivation, as well as the extent of holdings unenclosed. I regret, however, that the returns do not enable me to present the information with any confidence. The figures which relate to the total extent of holdings can only be accepted as an approximation to the truth, but, as regards the extent of land under tillage, the returns are as accurate, probably, as it is reasonable to expect under the present system of collection. We will first glance at the number of holders of land, and the estimated total extent of holdings.

40. The following results, distinguishing the pastoral from the settled districts, are elicited by the enquiry, viz.:—

	Freeholders. No.	Leaseholders. No.	Freehold. Acres.	Leasehold. Acres.
Pastoral ...	5,188	1,343	1,113,227¾	51,883,296
Settled	9,246	6,615	3,123,770⅝	3,051,648
Totals ...	14,434	7,958	4,236,998⅜	54,961,944

According to this statement, the extent of purchased land averages 215 acres to each freeholder in the pastoral districts, and 338 acres to each freeholder in the old settled districts, whilst the extent of leasehold land averages 41,610 acres to each leaseholder in the pastoral districts, and 466 acres in the settled districts.

41. In the returns of the previous year, the free and leaseholders were not separately distinguished, but putting the two classes together, the comparison stands thus—

31st March, 1862	21,175 holders.
31st March, 1863	22,389 "
Showing an increase of	1,214 holders.

Putting the extent of holdings lease and freehold together, a small deficiency is noticeable in the latter returns. The extent was estimated, on 31st March, 1862, at ... 63 536,457 acres, And on 31st March, 1863, at.. 63,201,943 "

Shewing a decrease of.. 334,514 acres.

The area of squatting runs has but in a few cases been accurately defined, and therefore these figures can only be regarded as a rough approximation to the truth.

42. With reference to the extent of land actually under tillage, and the produce thereof, we may regard the returns with more favour. I have no doubt they convey as fair a picture of the quality of land in crop, and of its estimated production, as the nature of the enquiry and former experience would seem to justify us in expecting.

The extension of agriculture in the pastoral districts is one of the most prominent features in the returns, as will appear by a glance at the following statement, showing the acreage in crop on the 31st March, 1862, and 31st March, 1863, viz.:—

Districts.	1862. Acres.	1863. Acres.	Increase. Acres.
Pastoral ..	43,228	55 490	12,262
Settled	254,347	246 648	7,699 decrease
Totals..	297,575	302 138	4,563

There is here a decrease of 7699 acres in the exhausted soils of the old settled districts, and an increase of 12,262 acres in the virgin soils of the pastoral districts, leaving a net increase of land under tillage to the extent of 4563 acres.

43. We will inquire now how this area has been cropped, and compare it with the previous year.

The following tabular form is, perhaps, the most simple way of conveying the results:—

	March 31, 1862, acres.	March 31, 1863, acres.	Increase, acres.	Decrease, acres.
Wheat	120,875¾	117,954¾	...	11,521
Maize	59,149½	78,232¾	19,083¼	...
Barley and oats ...	41,799½	50,001	8,201½	...
Rye, millet, and sorghum	1,496	741	...	755
Sown grasses	43,292¼	32,010	...	11,282¼
Potatoes	10,039½	9,282¾	...	757
Vineyards	1,130	1,459¼	329¼	...
Gardens	8,707¼	8,410	...	297¼
Tobacco	223¼	895¾	672	...
Cotton	...	54¾	54¾	...
Other crops	2,360½	3,196¾	835¾	...
Totals	297,575	302,138¼	...	...

This statement exhibits a falling off in the breadth of land sown in wheat to the extent of 11,521 acres, and in sown grasses to the extent of 11,282 acres, attributable without doubt to the dryness of the season. On the other hand, we notice an increase in the maize crop to the extent of 19,083 acres, which the breaking up of the drought towards the end of the year afforded farmers the opportunity of planting. There is also an extension of vineyard of 329 acres, and of tobacco of 672 acres, owing to the interruption of our regular supplies from America, and the consequent increase in price; and with these must be noticed an entirely new feature in the returns, namely, 54¾ acres of cotton, 17 acres of which were sown in the Clarence district, 12 acres in the county of Macquarie, and the rest in small quantities in other parts of the colony.

* It should be borne in mind that the inquiry extends only to holders of land exceeding one acre, and not to small town or suburban proprietors.

PRODUCE.

44. The acreage sown in wheat for grain in 1862 was 108,136 acres, against 123,468 acres in the previous year, showing a decrease of 15,332 acres. The produce of the sowing of the two years was as follows:—

	Bushels.	Bushels per acre.
1861	1,606,034	13
1862	1,054,954	9
Decrease	551,080	4

The serious effects of the drought of 1862 are here manifested, in the diminished production by no less than 551,080 bushels, or at the rate of four bushels per acre.

45. The average yield of wheat for the five years 1854 to 1858 was estimated at fifteen bushels per acre, and for the three following years, 1859 to 1861, at 13 bushels per acre. We have therefore to write down a loss of at least 5 bushels per acre on the yield of the last year.

The yield was at the rate of not quite 3 bushels for each head of the population, whilst the average consumption per head (including wheat for seed), is estimated at 7½ bushels per head. We have therefore to make up, by importations, for the large deficiency of 4½ bushels.

46. We will look to the importations, to see how far this deficiency has been met. It seems that we imported during 1862, of flour and bread 14,763 tons, of the declared value of £210 936, and of wheat 446,640 bushels, of the value of £128,382. If we turn this wheat into flour, at the rate of 45 bushels to the ton, we get 9925 tons, making a total importation of 24,698 tons of breadstuffs, to the value of £329,318. In addition to which, we imported—

Of barley and oats to the value of.	£20,322
Of rice	100,012
And of gram, pollard, &c.	4,538
Making a total sum of........	£464,190

or at the rate of £1 5s 3d. per head of the population sent out of the colony for grain and bread-stuffs during the year.

Of this large sum, £268,835 went to South Australia.

The foregoing calculations are for sea-borne importations only. The river-borne and overland importations, via the Murray, from Adelaide and across the fron tier from Melbourne, exceeded £20,000 in value.

47. The crop which maintains the second place in the returns of New South Wales agriculture is maize. It appears that the breadth of land sown in this description of crop for grain in 1862 was 75,991 acres, against 57,959 acres the previous year—an increase of 18,032 acres.

The yield last year is estimated at 2 559,258 bushels, averaging 33¾ bushels per acre, against 1,727,434 bushels the year before—averaging 30 bushels per acre, which, taking one year with the other, may be taken as the average yield.

48. The breadth of land sown in barley and oats for grain was 13,535 acres, against 10,147 the previous year—an increase of 2388 acres.

The produce exhibits a corresponding increase; having been returned in 1861 as 193,489 bushels, or at the rate of nineteen bushels per acre, and in 1862 as 232,051 bushels, or eighteen bushels per acre.

49. The potato crop shews the effects of the dry season, in the extent of land planted, as well as in the yield. The area planted in 1862 was 9282 acres, against 10,039 acres the previous year. The produce in 1861 was 30,941 tons, or at the rate of 3 tons to the acre. The produce in 1862 was 24,167 tons, or at the rate of 2½ tons to the acre.

50. The production of tobacco, it will be noticed, has taken a jump from 297,464 pounds in 1861, to 1,715,333 pounds in 1862. This is from an increased area of 672 acres.

51. The produce of the new cotton fields must not be passed without notice. It appears that off 54 acres 7743 pounds were picked, that is at the rate of 143 pounds per acre. Considering the extreme dryness of the season during the infancy of the crop, and the heavy rains which fell about the time of its maturity, these results are sufficiently encouraging to induce extended efforts.

52. The extension of our vine culture is a subject of much interest and importance to the colony, and it is satisfactory to notice a steady increase from year to year in the breadth of land planted. The returns shew the number of acres used for wine making and for table use separately, also the extent newly planted and as yet unproductive.

The following figures will afford a correct view of the progress of this important branch of industry during the last year, viz.—

	Wine making. Acres.	Table use. Acres.	Unproductive. Acres.	Total. Acres.
1861 ...	561½	278¾	289¾	1130
1862	794½	307½	357¼	1459¼
Increase .	233	28¾	67½	329¼

By this statement there appears to be an increase in the total extent of vineyard of 329 acres, and it should be noted that the returns do not embrace the small garden vineyards under one acre.

53. The produce of the last year's vintage was highly satisfactory, having exceeded in quantity per acre that of either of the three previous years, viz.,

	Acres.	Wine Gallons.	Gallons per acre.
1859	577	96,100	166
1860	622	99,791	160
1861	561	85,328	152
1862	794	144,888	182

This comes up very nearly to the average produce of the vineyards of France.* In addition to the wine, 2749 gallons of brandy were manufactured last year, a quantity also greatly in excess of previous years.

54. Of grapes for table use the crop was also very prolific, 420 tons having been taken from 307 acres—that is, over a ton and a quarter per acre—whereas in no previous year has the crop quite averaged a ton per acre.

55. Although the returns of last year show an increase in the breadth of land planted, it is by no means what it ought to be. Our fellow-colonists in South Australia are far outstripping us in this most important and profitable branch of industry. They had 4777 acres of vineyard last year, against 1459 acres in New South Wales. They produced 472,297 gallons of wine, against 144,888 gallons in New South Wales. Their increase in the last year was 859 acres; our increase the same year was only 529 acres. They exported over 2000 gallons of wine last year; we exported 10,062 gallons.

Their population is 135,329, against our 367,495.

56. It will be profitable, perhaps, before leaving the agricultural statistics, to extend the parallel a little further, to see what this active and industrious community is doing, as compared with ourselves. They had 494,511 acres of land under tillage last year; that is equal to 3·65 acres to each individual in the community. We had but 302,139 acres, equal to 0·82 acres to each person; that is, they had more than four times the extent of land under tillage to each head of the population than we had.

They had 320,160 acres under wheat last year, that is 2·40 acres to each person; we had, both for hay and grain, only 117,854, or 0·32 acres to each person; that is, they made more than seven-fold provision for the staff of life than we did.

Their wheat harvest produced 3,841,824 bushels, at the rate of 12 bushels per acre; ours produced 1,054,954 bushels, at the rate of 9 bushels per acre. But this with us was an exceptional year. The average yield in New South Wales is about 15 bushels; the average yield in South Australia is about 12 bushels.

They exported 51,092 tons of wheat and flour, of the value of £633,241; we imported 24,598 tons, of the value of £339,318.

This little digression from the subject in hand is not out of place. It may be useful in stimulating the agricultural industry of this colony, and may be turned to profitable account in leading our people to the pursuit of that steady and persevering industry which, under great disadvantages of climate, so largely characterises our neighbours in South Australia.

LIVE STOCK.

57. In the face of the severe losses occasioned by the protracted drought of 1862, the increase in the amount of live stock was considerable. These returns are taken at the same time with the returns of agriculture on 31st March, in order to embrace the lambs of the previous spring, which are generally weaned in February.

* 100 gallons per acre.

The following figures will exhibit the increase in each description of stock upon the returns of the preceding year:—

Horses show an increase at the rate of 17· per cent., cattle at the rate of 15· per cent., and sheep at the rate of 9· per cent. The serious effects of the drought are perceptible in the very small increase of sheep, particularly in the pastoral districts. In many parts of the colony the lambs were destroyed, to save the lives of the mothers.

The number of pigs in the colony was 125,541, against 146 091 the previous year, exhibiting a decrease of 20,550, or at the rate of 14· per cent.

PART VI.

MONETARY AND FINANCIAL.

58. The tables connected with the monetary and financial concerns of the colony present themselves next for consideration.

The course of exchange on London during the year was 7· per cent. on bills under 95 days' currency, 8· per cent on bills from 95 to 125 days' currency, and 9· per cent. on bills having a currency exceeding 125 days. The minimum purchase rate by the banks was ½ discount, the maximum was 1½ premium.

The minimum selling rate was ¾ premium, the maximum 2½ premium. Both the purchase and selling rates ruled higher than they did in 1861 by fully 1· per cent.

59. The rates of interest allowed by the banks on fixed deposits were—

For 3 months, 2 to 4 per cent per annum.
" 6 " 3 to 5 " "
" 12 " 4 to 6 " "

The Savings' Bank allowed 5 per cent to depositors, and lent on mortgage at 7 per cent.

60. The average amount of coin and bullion held by the banks was £1,625,897, against £1,547,390 the previous year; whilst the amount held at the end of the year was £1,404,715,* against £1,527,991 at the end of 1861—a decrease of £123,276. In connection with this subject, it may be remarked that in no year of the last decennial period, excepting 1857, has the amount of coin and bullion held by the Mint and by the Banks, been so small as it was at the end of 1862.

The average paper currency in circulation was £901,779, against £887,420 in 1861; whilst the notes in circulation on the 31st December, 1862, were £857,486, against £868,359 at the end of the previous year.

61. The Quarterly average of the deposits in the several Banks, and of the discounts for the two years 1861 and 1862, will be found by the following statement to exhibit an increasing accumulation of capital, and a larger amount of paper under discount, as we look upon the year as upon each succeeding Quarter of the year under review, viz.:—

	Deposits.		Discounts
1st Quarter, 1861	£5 278 964		£5 547 780
1st Quarter, 1862	5 267,137		5 842,110
	Decrease 11.827		Increase 274 330
2nd Quarter, 1861	5 235 947		5 450 537
2nd Quarter, 1862	5 381,601		6,004,485
	Increase 145 654		Increase 553 948
3rd Quarter, 1861	5 109 883		5 475,872
3rd Quarter, 1862	5,501 360		6 270 793
	Increase 391,477		Increase 794 921
4th Quarter, 1861	5 629 691		5,764 059
4th Quarter, 1862	5,544 780		6,604,297
	Increase £515,089		Increase £838,238

From the foregoing figures it will be noticed that, at the end of the last year the amount of cash deposits in the several banks exceeded by half a million what they did at the end of 1861; and that, to meet the increasing requirements of trade, the notes and bills under discount exceeded by £838,238 what they amounted to at the end of 1861.

62. As the statistics of Savings' Banks may be taken to some extent as an index to the prosperity of the industrial classes, we will look into this return somewhat closely. It appears that the deposits at the end of the year, with accumulated interest, amounted to £782,612 5s. 7d., to the credit of 14,956 depositors, classed as under, viz.:—

	Depositors.	Amount.	Average per head.
Up to .. £20 ..	6 028	£47,515 7 3	£7 17 7
" 50 ..	3 329	107,402 9 3	32 5 3

The comparison with the year 1861 stands as follows, viz.:—

In 1861....	13,282	£615,408 17 1	£46 6 8

In 1862....	14,956	716,381 16 6	47 17 11

We observe by this statement an increase in the number of depositors to the extent of 1674, and in the deposits to the extent of £105,972 19s. 5d., or at the average rate of £1 11s. 3d. per head. This may be taken as a fair indication of increasing prosperity or of greater providence amongst the industrial classes. To whichever cause it is to be attributed—perhaps to both—the result of the comparison may be viewed with satisfaction.

63. As everything connected with the working of such admirable institutions as banks for the savings of the working classes must be viewed with interest, I subjoin a table showing the number of depositors, amounts deposited, the average to each depositor, and the proportion of depositors to the total population of the colony for the seven years 1856 to 1862, by which it will be seen that whilst the average amount per head is not so large as it was in the earlier years, yet the number of depositors has increased from 1 in 27 in 1856 to 1 in 24 in 1862.

Year.	Population.	Number of depositors.	Amount of deposits. £ s. d.	Average sums deposited to each depositor. £ s. d.	Proportion of depositors to population

64. In connection with the monetary affairs of the colony, the operation of the Sydney branch of the Royal Mint demands passing attention. The increased production of gold noticed in a former part of this report has, as a matter of course, affected the coinage, as well as the bullion issued from the Mint. We find, in reference to the table No. 117, the comparison between 1861 and 1862 stands as follows, viz.:

There was received for coinage—

	Ozs.	Value.‡
In 1861	477,607	£1,863,632
In 1862	696,311	2,700,452
Increase in 1862	218,704	£836,820

There was issued in sovereigns, half-sovereigns, and bullion—

	In coin.	In bullion.
In 1861........	1,719,250	98,187
In 1862........	2,477,500	298,191
Increase in 1862	758,250	200,004
Total..............	£958,254

The revenue of the Mint was £32,806 18s. 1d. in 1862, against £22,568 1s. 11d. the previous year.

Since the opening of the Mint, on the 14th May, 1855, there have been received for coinage 3,025,348 oz. of gold, of the value of £11,790,417; and there has been issued—

In coin	£10,912,250
In bullion	871,399
Total value	£11,783,649

The total revenue derived from the Mint, during the eight years, has been £142,920 9s. 10d.

* Including coin and bullion in the Branch Royal Mint.
† It should be observed that interest is not allowed on sums exceeding £200.
‡ At £3 17s. 10½d. per oz.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

65. The state of the public accounts, in so far as relates to revenue and expenditure, forms a proper subject for consideration in analyzing the year's statistics. The tables are compiled from the statement of the Auditor-General, and are numbered 120 to 125.

The revenue and receipts for 1862 were £1,557,639 16s. 8d., against £1,421,831 5s 2d. the year before, showing a net increase of £135,808 11s. 6d. The following comparative statement will afford an insight into the sources of income from which the total revenue is derived, and show the increase or decrease respectively under each general head, namely:—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.

a Decrease £1,111 15s. b Decrease £3,068 13s.

The amount realised by the sale of debentures in 1862 was £644,285 9s. 6d., against £394,457 5s. 6d. the previous year—that is, £249,828 4s. in excess of 1861. It should be understood that debentures are only issued to meet the exigencies of the services for which loans are authorised by Parliament. They are issued in sums of not less than £100, having, for the most part, thirty years' currency, and bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

66. The disbursements out of revenue, in 1862, amounted to £1,369,328 15s. 2d., besides an unclassified expenditure, consisting of interest on loans, &c., to the extent of £224,459 7s.; together, £1,593,788 2s. 2d.

The total expenditure in 1861 was £1,529,788 3s. 2d.; the increase in 1862 was, therefore, £64,000 minus 1s.

The receipts for 1862 were at the rate of £4 5s. 2d. per head of the population, and the disbursements at the rate of £4 7s. 2d.

According to the return No. 125, which will be found at page 148, the actual liability of the colony, on account of loans, at the end of 1862 (secured upon the consolidated revenue), was £4,143,180, the annual interest payable on which amounts to £206,945.† The debt was as near as possible at the rate of £11 5s. 6d. per head of the population at the end of the year, and the interest at the rate of 11s. 3d. per head.

67. At the end of the 6th part of the work will be found tables of taxes, duties, fees, &c. The Customs duties remain the same as they have been since the remodelling of the tariff in the year 1855, with the exception of the duty on unmanufactured tobacco, which has been reduced from 2s. to 1s. per lb., by Act of Parliament, 25 Vict., No. 10, taking effect on 1st January, 1862. These duties, as heretofore, form the only item of general taxation to which the people of the colony are subjected. The amount of duties received at the Custom-house on imports in 1862 was £609,372, and the duty paid on distilled spirits £35,643; together £645,015, or at the rate of £1 15s. 3d ‡ per head of the estimated population at the middle of the year.

PART VII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

68. Part 7 of the volume consists of a number of Miscellaneous Returns which do not properly find a place under any of the previous heads.

The principal tables have reference to Lands Sold, Granted, and Selected; to Mortgages on Lands and Live Stock; to Railway Receipts and Expenditure; Public Works; Meteorology; Post Office; Military and Municipal matters; Political Franchise, &c.

LAND SALES.

69. The quantity of land sold (otherwise than conditionally) during the year, exhibits a considerable decrease on the returns of 1861, as will be seen by the following statement, viz.:—

	1861. Acres.	1861. Amount.	1862. Acres.	1862. Amount.
Pastoral districts..	107,129	£123 251	38 870	£50 217
Settled districts ..	82 807	126,029	28,422	48 512
Totals	189 936	£249 280	67,292	£98,729

It appears, however, by the return No. 161, that 357,280 acres have been sold conditionally, under the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861, upon which the first instalment of 5s. per acre has been paid, amounting to £89,320, together making £188,040.

The balance payable in 1865, upon the lands conditionally sold, amounts to £267,960.

It would further appear by the same return, that the following lands were disposed of under the several conditions established by the Lands Alienation Act of 1861, at the average price stated, viz.:—

Condition.	Area. a. r. p.	Average Price per Acre. £ s. d.
Auction—Town lands	489 1 4	25 5 6
" Suburban	1,420 2 24	10 13 5
" Country	29,729 0 1	1 2 4
Selection after failure by auction or forfeiture	22,346 2 24	1 1 2
Improved lots sold to owners of improvements	3,470 0 0	2 3 4
Sold under return of water reservation	2 2 0	6 5 0
Specially sold at appraised price ...	6 3 0½	10 16 4
Reclaimed land sold at appraised price	2 0 9	24 16 0
Sold by pre-emption	30,619 2 14	1 0 11
Sold "conditionally"	357,280 2 21	1 0 0
Total	445,367 0 35½	......

The figures in this return differ materially from those given in table 156, which gives the area sold, "otherwise than conditionally," 67,292 acres, whereas we have here, exclusive of conditional sales, an area of 88,087 acres. This, I am informed, is owing to the pre-emptive purchases "actually paid" being included in one, and those "sanctioned but not paid," in the other.

The actual receipts at the Treasury, from the sale of lands in 1862, amounted to £216,988, against £222,594 the year before.

Looking to the decennial table and comparing the receipts of the two quinquennial periods, we find that the receipts of the first five years averaged £251,419 per annum, and of the second five years, £217,632 per annum.

The total receipts during the latter five years amounted to £1,994,332; and of this sum £1,088,158, or 54·60 per cent., was derived from sales, and £906,174, or 45·40 per cent., from rents, assessments, and licenses.

PUBLIC WORKS.

70. The return of public works carried on during the year exhibits a total expenditure of £687,895, classified as under, viz.:—

Railways	£293,234
Electric telegraphs	23,162
Main roads	60,891
Bridges	12,860
Harbour and river navigation	84,381
Public works and buildings	105,040
Minor roads and bridges	57,138
Works not under the immediate supervision of the Government	51,189
Total	£687,895

Of this sum it appears that there was some £295,901 paid out of the general revenue, and £391,994 charged to Loans account.

RAILWAYS, TELEGRAPHS, AND POST OFFICES.

71. The railway returns for 1862 exhibit a largely increased traffic, both passenger and goods, compared with 1861.

The number of passengers (single and return) who availed themselves of this mode of travelling, on each of the great trunk lines, was as follows, viz.:—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.
Great Northern ..	126,431	143,157	16,726
Great Southern ..	253,707	353,970	100,263
Great Western	58,882	92,129	33,247
Totals...	439,020	589,256	150,236

The goods traffic was:—

	1861. Tons.	1862. Tons.	Increase. Tons.
Great Northern ..	59,538	156,230	96,692
Great Southern ..	36,290	40,755	4,465
Great Western ..	5,309	8,152	2,852
Totals ..	101,128	205,137	104,009

* The actual amount of interest paid on loans, in 1862, was £166,676.

‡ The Customs revenue in England amounts to 18s. 7d. per head, and in Ireland to 7s. 11d. per head; but other sources of taxation bring up the annual average per head of the population in England to £2 11s. 1½d., and in Ireland to £1 8s. 11d., viz.:—

	England. s. d.	Ireland. s. d.
Excise duties	18 6	9 10
Stamp	7 6	1 10½
Land and assessed taxes ...	3 11	0 2
Income tax	0 1½	3 6½

The receipts for each of the two years from the coaching traffic were—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.
Great Northern ..	£11,393	£14,205	£2 812
Great Southern ..	31,418	37,272	5,854
Great Western ..	7,720	12,061	4,341
Totals ..	£50,531	£63,538	£13,007

The receipts from the goods traffic were—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.
Great Northern	£6,787	£12,744	£5,957
Great Southern	14,097	17,155	3,058
Great Western	2,781	7,001	4,220
Totals	£23,665	£36,900	£13,235
Coaching and goods ..	£74,196	£100,438	£26,242

The working expenses of each of the two years were as follows, viz.:—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.
Great Northern	£16 230	£19,992	£3,762
Great Southern	39 445	42,001	2,556
Great Western	5,719	7,032	1,313
Totals	£69,394	£63,925	£7,631

The general results from the foregoing statements may be summed up thus: that whilst the receipts have increased 35 per cent., the expenditure has increased only 12 per cent.

The expenditure of the year 1862, in the construction and extension of railways, was as under:—

Northern line	£110,096
Southern line	125,929
Western line	72,337
Total	£309,362*

72. The working of the electric telegraph continues to exhibit marked success. The comparison with 1861 shows as follows, viz.:—

	1861.	1862.	Increase.
Number of telegrams..	74 204	104,660	30,456
Amount received	£16,931	£25,081	£8,150

The distance travelled by the telegraphic wire in 1862 was 2539 miles.

73. As postal matters are made the subject of a special report by the Postmaster-General, I need only here notice the general results.

The number of offices was increased from 340 in 1861 to 368 in 1862, and the extent of postal lines was increased from 9569 miles in 1861 to 11,211 in 1862. The income and expenditure for each of the two years were—

	1861.	1862.	Increase
Income	£48,166	£56,305	£8138
Expenditure ..	81,185	81,514	329

The excess of expenditure over income was £33,018 in 1861, and £25,209 in 1862, shewing a decrease of £7809 on the working of the latter year, although the distance run was increased by 1642 miles.

METEOROLOGY.

74. The following figures will afford a comparative view of the rain fall in the two years 1861 2 at the stations where observations were taken and recorded in an unbroken series.

	Height above sea. Feet.	1861 Rain fall. Inches.	1861 Days.	1862 Rain fall. Inches.	1862 Days.	Difference. Inches.	Difference. Days.
Armidale...	3278	41 68	143	17 17	99	24 91	44
Bathurst...	2393	29 82	91	16 87	59	12 95	32
Cooma	2637	15 40	116	14 41	98	0 99	18
Goulburn...	2129	23 52	104	16 35	66	7 17	38
Sydney	145	58 36	157	23 99	109	34 37	48

The average fall of rain for the five places was 33 63 inches in 1861, and 15·87 inches in 1862. The average number of days in which rain fell was 122 in 1861, and 86 in 1862.

The observations taken at other places being incomplete, cannot be used for the purpose of comparison.

The average rain fall in the colony, for each of the five years 1858 to 1862, would appear to present the fluctuations shewn below, viz.:—

	Number of days.	Inches.
1858	128	30
1859	104	27
1860	124	43
1861	117	34
1862	79	16

The irregularity of the observations at different places, in different years, will however admit of this result being taken as an approximation only to the truth.

MORTGAGES.

75. The amount lent upon mortgage of real estate was less in 1862 than in any year since 1856, owing, doubtless, to the depreciation in the value of land, which is particularly evidenced in the returns of the last two years. The operations of the last five years, as exhibited in the figures below, will be found to support this view of the case, viz.:—

Year.	Mortgages. No.	Mortgages. Amount.	Discharges. No.	Discharges. Amount.
1858............	1334	£705,337	386	£228,468
1859............	1122	874 643	406	289 760
1860............	1240	994 230	464	3 0 751
1861............	1150	691,233	483	315 282
1862............	1103	682 693	495	371 983

76. The liens on wool in 1862 do not reach one-half the amount registered in 1861, whilst the mortgages on live stock shew a result considerably in excess of the sum lent in that year. As the operations of the five years 1858 to 1862 may probably convey an approximate idea of the extent of capital invested in pastoral pursuits, by shewing the sums lent upon this species of property, I append a statement of them:—

Year.	Liens on wool.	Mortgages on live stock.
1858	£134,006	£965,405
1859	195,670	1,516,710
1860	112,752	1,614,890
1861	178,797	1,120,384
1862	87,487	1,312,245

The actual amount of mortgages on live stock registered in the General Registry Office during the five years was £6,532,635, and the discharges registered during the same period amounted to £2,615,695, leaving an undischarged balance of £3,916,940 at the end of the last year on the Register; but to what extent the balance may have been reduced by unregistered discharges I have no means of knowing.

INSOLVENCIES.

77. The number of insolvencies in 1862 was smaller than in either of the four previous years, and the amount of liabilities under one half. The following statement will shew at a glance the improvement in trade indicated by these returns, viz.:—

Year.	Number of Insolvencies.	Liabilities.	Assets.	Deficiency.
1858..	386	689.112	453,189	235,923
1859..	348	499,787	241 385	258 402
1860..	511	835 825	541 745	294 080
1861..	463	589,727	335,340	254 387
1862..	314	263 867	155,593	108,274
Totals	2022	£2 878 318	£1 727,252	£1,151,066

By this statement, we perceive that during the five years there have been 2022 insolvencies, the aggregate liabilities amounting to £2,878,318, the assets being estimated at an average of 60 per cent., and the deficiency at an average of 40 per cent. Whether the actual results, on the winding up of the different estates, were as favourable as here indicated, there are no returns to show.

MILITARY.

78. The number of Volunteers on the roll of the several companies, at the end of 1862, was 2044, exclusive of the Mounted Rifles, the strength of which corps is not given in the return.

The strength of the Artillery has increased from 267 in 1861, to 336 in 1862.

The Sydney battalion of rifles, of eight companies, which mustered 769 men in 1861, are reduced to 742, averaging 93 men to each company.

The Suburban battalion, consisting of six companies, can boast of a small increase in its strength, from 363 in 1861 to 371 in 1862, averaging 62 men to each company.

The Local (Country) corps, comprising seven companies, show a small decrease in number, from 590 men in 1861 to 571 men in 1862, averaging 81 to each company.

POLITICAL FRANCHISE.

79. The number of registered electors on the electoral rolls was 107,081, against 106,189 in 1861—an increase of 892. It would appear that 29 per cent. of the total population of the colony, and 52 per cent. of the total male population, have the privilege of voting for members to serve in the Legislative Assembly. By the census of 1861, the proportion of males under 20 years of age to the total male population, was 42 per cent, leaving 58 per cent of 20 years old and upwards. It would appear, therefore, seeing that 21 is the age entitling persons to the franchise, that few, if any, who are entitled to vote can be omitted from the rolls, there being a margin of only 6 per cent. to include the males of the age between 20 and 21, and such as may have escaped registration.

MISCELLANEOUS.

80. Amongst the returns remaining to be noticed are those which relate to political and municipal affairs, to military expenditure, and to civil justice. I shall leave these, however, to speak for themselves, as they appear to present no new features calling for particular notice.

The passing comments which the perusal of the tables have called forth, and the figures which have been introduced to illustrate the results of the inquiry, will convey a general idea of the progress of the country during the year that has passed. Whilst there has been no very extraordinary development in any of the known resources of the country, nor any discovery of new fields of enterprise, excepting perhaps the opening of the silver mine at Moruya, the year has been marked by steady improvement in all the main branches of industry.

Trade has been more active, mining operations have been more successful, manufactures show a steady increase, more land has been brought into cultivation, and more capital has been directed to pastoral pursuits. Exceptional circumstances, however, intervened to rob the husbandman and small stockholder, in many parts of the country, of a fair return for their labour and capital. The drought which commenced in the early part of the year, and continued with almost unremitting severity to its close, deprived the farmer in many districts of the fruits of his industry, and brought ruin to the door of many a small stockholder.

The evil effects of this visitation cannot be reduced to figures, but the great deficiency in the wheat and potato crops, and the small increase exhibited in the live stock returns (in the number of sheep more particularly) afford ample indication of its sinister influence.

81. In bringing this lengthy report to a close, I would take leave to recommend that a sum of money—say, two thousand pounds—may be asked for from Parliament, to enable the Registrar-General to employ his own officers in the collection of the annual returns of agriculture and live stock. This course has been pursued in Victoria with very satisfactory results. The returns are more reliable, and are presented to Parliament with greater regularity than was possible when the collection was entrusted to the police. The collection by the constabulary is open to two serious objections—Firstly, it interferes with their ordinary duties, and therefore is treated as of secondary importance; and secondly, it challenges opposition on the part of those from whom information is sought, by reason of the feeling of compulsion associated in the minds of many persons with the functions of a policeman. Others again think the inquiry impertinent, or that the information may be used against their interest, in the shape of taxation of some sort or other.

All these objections have been overcome in the sister colony, and the apprehensions of the farmers and stockholders for the most part allayed by the employment of special collectors under the Registrar-General, whose duty it is to explain the nature and purpose of the inquiry, and the importance of the results to the public at large, as illustrative of the settlement and progress of the country, and who are enjoined to strict secrecy as to the information supplied to them.

82. It is still a matter of regret that I am unable to present the statistics to you at an earlier period of the year. There is no reason why the returns, if promptly sent in at the time prescribed, should not be ready to place before Parliament by the middle of the year at the latest. The delay is not in the compilation, but in the difficulty of collection. Reminders have little effect, and when the returns at last come in, they often bear evidence of having been prepared without due care, and not infrequently have to be returned for correction.

The compiler will take it as a favour, should any one discover any error or omission in the work, if he will point it out. It is not to be expected that the work can be preserved from the possibility of error; and the compiler would earnestly impress upon those who are charged with the duty of furnishing returns the necessity of looking carefully to their preparation. It is impossible for the compiler to prepare accurate returns from inaccurate data, and the necessary information to enable him to detect errors is rarely within his reach.

Statistics to be valuable must be accurate, and it has been my object, since the compilation of the annual tables was placed in my hands, to present them in a methodised shape, so as to be readily understood, and by the exercise of every possible care, to impart to them such a degree of reliability as may fairly entitle them to public confidence.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedient Servant,
CHRIS. ROLLESTON, Registrar-General.

CHASING A BLOCKADE-RUNNER.

(From the Nassau Guardian, June 3.)

We have to record this evening another unjustifiable outrage, committed by a Union gun-boat within the prescribed limits of our shores. On Saturday last the steamer Margaret and Jessie, Captain Wilson, from Charleston to this port, was fallen in with by the Union steamer Rhode Island off Abaco, and chased until she arrived close to the shore of James Point, Eleuthera. There would have been no legal cause of complaint had the pursuit and firing ceased as soon as the Margaret and Jessie approached within the distance of three miles from the land; but as she neared the coast, and was only 250 yards off, that is, between the reef and the land, the gunboat, which was not more than from a quarter to half a mile distant, commenced pouring in broadside after broadside—varying the performance with shot, grape, and shell—not only to the imminent danger of all on board (and there were ladies among the passengers) but to the serious alarm of the inhabitants of the island, who suddenly found themselves subjected to a sharp and decisive bombardment. The missiles fired from the Rhode Island ploughed up the earth in various directions, and came in close proximity to, if not actually passing through, dwellings, and driving people to seek refuge behind rocks and other projections. This was kept up for miles, and at length the Margaret and Jessie received a shot through her boiler and through her bows, which forced her to take the beach, then only fifty yards distant. We understand that one of the firemen was injured, and if a fatal result should ensue, it will, assuredly, be a case of aggravated murder. Such are the plain facts of this ferocious outrage. There are too many disinterested witnesses to the transaction, whose testimony will outweigh any combination to pervert the truth. When the same vessel fired into the steamer Sirius, a few weeks ago, there were no spectators on shore to determine the distance, and the assertion of the commander that he was five miles off was received as conclusive. But the captain of the Sirius, whose character for veracity cannot be impeached, emphatically stated that he was fired at within two miles of the land. It is high time indeed that the home Government should act energetically with respect to these aggressions. Certainly the circumstances connected with the attack on the Margaret and Jessie, and on Eleuthera, are so flagrant that they cannot well be overlooked. Two men engaged in fishing off Eleuthera were struck by the missiles fired from the gunboat. The Margaret and Jessie has got off the beach, and arrived here.

PRINTERS' ALMSHOUSES, WOOD GREEN.—The annual meeting of the subscribers to this institution was held on 29th June, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. From the report, which was read by the secretary (Mr. Darkin), it appeared that the asylum had been fully maintained in its efficiency during the past year, the comfort of the inmates having been carefully studied, and various repairs and improvements effected. The receipts for the year amounted to £250 18s. 10d., and the expenditure had been less that amount by £39 12s. 1d., which was the balance at the bankers at the close of the year. Considerable interest was attached to the meeting in consequence of the sanction of the Charity Commissioners having been obtained to a scheme for administering the noble bequest of the late George Biggs, Esq., to aged printers and the widows of printers in pensions of £10 per annum. Petitions will be ready on and after the 1st August next, and the trustees purpose electing thirty pensioners. The scheme will be fully advertised in the course of two or three weeks. A complete copy of the "Family Herald," the success attending which doubtless laid the foundation of Mr. Biggs' large fortune, and which has just completed its twentieth volume, has been generously presented to the library of the institution by the present proprietor (W. Stevens, Esq.,) for the use of its inmates, and as a memorial of the deceased gentleman, to whom the printing profession owe a large debt of gratitude, for the remembrance of its aged members and their widows. The amount invested with the official trustees is £11,594 7s. 2d., the interest accruing from which (over £300 per annum) will be the sum divisible among the fortunate recipients. Allusion was also made in the report to the dramatic reading kindly given by Mark Lemon, Esq., the Editor of "Punch," on the 2nd May last, and which realised upwards of £40 to the institution. The election of officers and the usual vote of thanks closed the business of the meeting.—City Press.

CUSTOM-HOUSE.—Entered Outwards: October 9. Dartmouth, ship, 993 tons, Captain Davis, for Calcutta; Devonshire, ship, 858 tons, Captain Calnorn, for Hongkong.

The Vimeira, Captain Green, left the Isle of Wight on the 5th July, and had very light winds to the Equator, which was crossed in longitude 27° W. on the 8th August. She passed the meridian of the Cape on the 24th August, and ran down her easting in a parallel of 43° S., carrying westerly weather. Passed Cape Otway on the 1st instant, and lay to off Sydney Heads on the night of the 8th instant. The weather throughout the passage has been extremely fine, the topsails never having been reefed.

The Collaroy (s.) left Brisbane Tuesday, October 6th, at 2 p.m., and came to an anchor same day, at the Pilot Station, Moreton Bay, at 5.30 p.m., the weather being too boisterous and heavy sea, to proceed outside. Wednesday, October 7th, got underway, and rounded Cape Moreton at 7.30 a.m. Thursday, October 8th, 6.45 a.m., abreast Smoky Cape, rounded Seal Rocks same day at 3 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads Friday, October 9th, at 6.30 a.m. Experienced first part of passage brisk winds from the S.E., and hazy sky; middle part, light unsteady winds and cloudy; latter part, brisk gale from S.S.E., and squally, with heavy head sea. Passed the steamer Balclutha October 8th, at 11.30 p.m., ten miles north of Cape Schanck.

IMPORTED RAMS.—Eight very fine rams arrived yesterday by the Vimeira, from London. They are of a superior description, and are in excellent condition.

THE NAVAL BRIGADE.—The whole of the Brigade have been ordered by Captain Hixson to muster to-day for the purpose of being present at the presentation of prizes, by Lady Young, to the successful competitors in the Rifle Matches. This is the first time that the whole of the Brigade has been enabled to appear on a public occasion. They are a fine body of men, and the very able manner in which they perform the various exercises shews the care and attention bestowed on them by Mr. Grub, the gunnery lieutenant, and the officers in command.

PATENT SLIP.—The patent slip which Messrs. Campbell and Co. have for some time been constructing at Redbank is now completed; and although its dimensions are not very great, it is admirably adapted for the small vessels which are able to proceed up the river as far as Redbank. A want of a slip has been long felt in Brisbane. The danger and inconvenience which masters of vessels have hitherto experienced through the necessity of having to haul their craft on logs temporarily laid down on the river bank may now be partially put to an end. To Messrs. Campbell and Co. is due the credit of having constructed the first bona fide slip in Queensland, and we hope the speculation will prove beneficial to them. The steamer Hawke is now hauled up on the slip some distance above high water mark, and is undergoing extensive repairs to her hull. As soon as the repairs to this vessel have been completed, the slip will be open to receive any vessels which may require the use of it. As we have stated, Messrs. Campbell's slip is in every way adapted for small vessels; yet it is not either sufficiently commodious or convenient for large vessels which may arrive in an injured condition at Brisbane. There are several sites near our town very suitable for the formation of either a dry dock or patent slip of any required size. The undertaking which Messrs. Campbell and Co. have successfully accomplished ought to stimulate the mercantile community of Brisbane to form a company, having for its object the construction of an extensive dry dock or slip. If this was done, it would not only prove beneficial to our port, but would in a little time prove a profitable investment.—Queensland Guardian, October 1.

WRECK OF THE CREOLE.—Further particulars from the Launceston Examiner, September 29:—We are unable to give additional information respecting the fate of this vessel. Chief district constable Propsting, and Messrs. D. Clyne and T. Williams left town early on Saturday morning on their way overland to Waterhouse, for the purpose of obtaining all the information on the subject it is possible to get. The George Town police-boat was not dispatched until Sunday morning at two o'clock, when it left George Town with a crew of four. We may hope to hear something of the result of the search, and inquiries of one or other of these parties in a day or two, if they are not materially delayed by the stormy weather which has again set in. The police magistrate having thought it desirable that the statement of the man Brooks should be taken in a formal manner, the latter was required to attend at the police-office yesterday morning, when the following particulars were elicited from him, in the form of a declaration before the police magistrate and his worship the Mayor:—I left Launceston about three months ago in a surf boat, in company with William Boswell and his wife, and Samuel Middup. My business was to take this man and his wife to Dog Island, one of the islands in the Straits. After going down we purposed collecting oysters on a flat on Woody Island. The weather and tides prevented our obtaining the oysters; we got some, but only a few, and we eat them. I subsisted on rations, which I took with me. We spent a month at this work. A man named James Lawton, who lives on Green Island, asked me to go to Waterhouse Island with him to fetch some sheep. I judge these islands to be fifty miles apart. Waterhouse is about forty miles from the Tamar Heads. Green Island is about forty miles from Cape Portland, which is the nearest point of the mainland. I went with Lawton, and reached Waterhouse Island on a Sunday afternoon. We remained there until the Tuesday or Wednesday week following, when we left, carrying the sheep with us. Barrett occupies the island, and has 700 or 800 sheep on it. On the Sunday before leaving, a young man named Cordell reported to us that he had seen, on the western side of the island, several trusses of hay, a broken oar or two, broken chairs, boards, and portions of children's dresses, fragments of which he brought with him. Barrett's house is on the eastern side of the island. I had the same morning been along the eastern shore, and I saw no portions of wreck on it. Owing to what Cordell stated, Mr. Barrett, accompanied by his nephew, Jim Lawton, Cordell, and me went to the west beach of the island. I there found sixty odd sheep all dead; a dark bay horse, a heifer in milk or rather a cow; a boat split in two, end with some of her planks knocked out. It was a longboat, square-sterned, and would carry about two tons. There was no name on it. I saw nothing more on that day, but on the day following I saw another horse—a black one—on the beach. Afterwards I picked up pieces of quartering branded "Creole," and which had apparently been used as cattle fittings. I also found quantities of carrots, a few cabbages, and pieces of blanket. The beach was a rocky one. We did not go to the mainland, the sea being too high for a boat to live. On the Tuesday I saw other portions of children's clothing, having no marks. On the following day, Harry Cordell, James Lawton, and I started in the boat for Waterhouse Point, on the mainland, to see if anything had been cast up there. The point is about twenty miles from Green Island. The beach was so rough that Lawton had to remain in the boat to keep her off. At high-water mark I noticed a quadrant and sextant box; then an American stock, with the glass broken, and full of seaweed; several trusses of hay, a quantity of carrots and mangold wurtzel; a number of pine boards, apparently portions of cabin fittings—they were painted, and appeared to have been varnished; several cabin doors, with brass locks and hinges—one had a white glass knob, and I noticed another with a doll handle varnished—some had apparently had glass in them, which was broken out; a ten-gallon keg lashed to a buoy, and nearly full of sand. I think the next thing pulled up was a waistcoat, then a black dress coat much torn and a Crimean shirt. Neither my companions nor I examined the pockets, nor was the coat removed by us. I then found a box with the bottom knocked out, and bearing on a label the name of 'Cook;' also a small broken trunk labelled Miss——, I forget the name. I put it up at high-water mark, and expect it is there now. I also saw a beer cask, and a lot of gilt mouldings, some of which were carved at each end. There were a number of fragments of broken boxes scattered about, and a parcel of sealed letters. The letters we took to Waterhouse Island. I cannot read, but William Barrett read some of the addresses on these letters. He read Launceston and Plymouth. There might have been a dozen of these letters, and they were tied together with red tape. I picked up a number of sheets of paper having writing on them; also the barrel of a musical box. The barrel was in a box, on which there was an address. I placed the box in a bush, so that it might not be picked up by any stroller passing by. I also found two broken oars, branded 'Creole,' a ship fender, and a book, which the young man with me said was a log book. This book was left in Lawton's boat. We found a pillow marked 'Gleadow,' and the case of which had written on it the name 'Fleurty,' or some word like it. We also got a bolster, but it had no name on it. Farther on we saw what I took to be the deck of a poop. I thought so because the planks were not so wide or stout as those of a deck. I think they were plain. There were plenty of pieces of timber like the fittings up of a vessel. One had on it a piece of copper sheathing, or Muntz metal. I did not see any ribs, or any part of the frame work of a ship. I saw travellers, but they were spare ones, for they were tied together, with the exception of one. I did not see the trace of any dead human body, nor were there any carcases of cattle or sheep on the main land. We took with us in the boat the pillow, pillow-case, life-buoy, book and letters. The buoy has 'Creole' on it. The main land on which we found the portions of wreck is about four or five miles from where the police constable is stationed. I did not make a report to the constable. On the following morning Lawton and I left Waterhouse for Green Island, taking the forty sheep with us. We did not get to Green Island until Friday. On the Sunday following, I again left for Waterhouse Island, taking with me Samuel Middup, whom I had found at Green Island on my arrival there. When we got to Waterhouse island, Sam walked round and picked up on the beach two four-legged stools, which had been painted a light colour. There was also picked up a boat-fender and a gig yoke. I was at this time weather bound at the island for a week; no one left the island while I was there. I saw one vessel, a steamer, anchored under Waterhouse some two or three miles out; she was unable to make headway. This was the only vessel I saw while there. I left Waterhouse on a Sunday for Twenty-day Island. This was exactly a fortnight from the time the things washed ashore were first seen. Barrett and I considered that the wreck must have taken place on this island (Twenty-day Island), and that if there were any survivors they would have been found there. Barrett has sheep on this island, and he commissioned me to kill them for the use of any person who might be found on it. There was no vestige of any recent wreck on the island. Owing to the threatening state of the weather I had to run to the Little Forrester, and was there detained until last Thursday night. I was twelve or thirteen days in the Forrester near to a shepherd or overseer in the employ of Mr. Hesilam, and I told him of the wreck. I got into George Town on Friday morning, and there made a report to Mr. Fereday. I arrived in Launceston the same evening. I saw one spar, broken at both ends, on the main land; also, broken camp stools, three broken ships' blocks, and the shell of a large block, without sheave. I saw eight or nine hatches, chiefly on the main land. I believe one or two were on the island, and all are branded Creole. The horses I saw were jammed in among the rocks, and could not be seen until they were come upon. The black horse might have been there on Sunday, though not seen until the following day. I saw but one cow. In saying that I saw the carcasses of many cattle, I intended the sheep. The coast is so rough that had the horses, sheep, and cattle swum to shore, they would not have been able to land alive."

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1863.

IF the formation of a new Ministry were as facile as the establishment of a financial or commercial company, the course of affairs would be tolerably smooth. A number of men meet together who, either in view of their own business or that of their neighbours, deem the establishment of some new speculation timely and promising. Their object is definite. The means for its accomplishment are clear. Capital is to be raised, shares are issued, speculative spirit is aroused, and the directory is chosen. The final issue is indeed left to the arbitration of fate. Still the object is precise, and the means of accomplishing it are common-place. It is not necessary that those who co-operate in this single purpose should have any common sympathies. They may be of different creeds, or of no creed. They may entertain views entirely in conflict as to the proper forms of Government and methods of public administration. They may have little or no social sympathy, and never meet at the same table except one covered with green baize. But having their days of gathering—their modes of business recognised—their precise object defined—they confine, if they please, their conversation to the subject in hand, and having settled it, go severally their ways.

But a Government is somewhat different. There are not only questions of a very complex and difficult nature relating to the administration of Government, but there are also principles upon which it must proceed, and which will require at once a correspondence of ideas. This, indeed, is sometimes realised by the actual agreement of the parties. Trained in the same school, and accustomed to think and act together, their Government naturally assumes the complexion of their personal and united opinion, and their policy is known before-hand by the doctrines they have vindicated. Or it may be, as in the famous case described by BURKE, when the formation of a Ministry devolved on the great Lord CHATHAM. Then, he tells us the Council Chamber was like a tesselated pavement—here a bit of black, there a bit of white, fitting together, but having no adhesion and affording no solid ground to stand upon. Thus when the Minister was withdrawn by gout from the Council-board its members were thrown into a state of utter confusion and helplessness. With rhetorical exaggeration he describes the Ministers meeting for the first time in their lives, and asking each other for their card. It is possible that a Ministry may be so formed and preserved if the members of it submit with docility to the absolute dictation of a master mind and have no unfortunate orations on record which may be produced against them. But the difficulty is marvellously multiplied where every man who comes into parliamentary life has certain antecedents—when he has made himself conspicuous by the advocacy of particular opinions, and, all unconscious of the fate by which he would be brought into association with quondam opponents, he has to make the best terms he can to be saved from the utter confusion of devouring his own words, and hearing his own speeches of to-day answered by his speeches of yesterday.

Names are sometimes given out as representing a proposed administration which would puzzle the world to discern how it is to yield a working body, much more to command a working majority. It would seem that all the various doctrine of political economy as well as forms of Government were thrown into some crucible, and that the public had to wait, like the Israelites of old, to see what would issue when the contents are poured forth upon the sand. But we suspect that the affinities of our political opinions are not quite as perfect as the components of the celebrated idol, and that there is no power in nature by which they can be assimilated and united so as to form one solid body.

Perhaps, however, it is thought that by the same process which nature observes in sending down the heavier parts towards the centre of gravity and giving thus a basis for the lighter, some strong-minded individual, or some definite idea, may serve as the foundation of a Ministry, leaving all the cruder substances to take their chance in the process of confluence and deposition. But what, for example, can we do with free traders and protectionists when they come to settle the system of finance? What can Anti-State-aid men do with those who are resolved at any rate to impose the cost of their devotions on their fellow countrymen? What can we do with those whose guiding principle is organic change, and who seek to render numbers absolute in the State, but who are acting with those who desire to reform the disorders of Government by bringing the suffrage in more distinct connection with the stable interests and property of the country? We certainly do not say it is absolutely necessary that conflicting opinions must be always prominent in legislation or administration; but we cannot conceive of opposites arranging themselves in order or admitting of co-operation where the points at issue enter into immediate and most urgent affairs.

The degree to which this compromise is admissible must be a matter for every man's conscience. There are indeed inconsistencies so palpable as at once to destroy our confidence in those who perpetrate them. No logic can reconcile to the absolute and palpable surrender of conviction in order to enjoy the benefits of power. But it is only fair to remember that in the limited circles of public men the necessities of the colony demand some suppression of individual notions, and admit of greater latitude than would be proper in administering the affairs of a nation. It is possible, without unprincipled compromise, for persons who greatly differ to co-operate in the points of their agreement when most of their differences are not urgent and may be properly suspended. It is, notwithstanding, essential that they should look the difficulty fairly in the face, and understand its limits and the restraint it mutually imposes. It cannot be questioned, however, that there are cases where the subject of contest is not one of moral duty or entering into the domain of absolute right and wrong in a moral sense. In most public questions, it is impossible for any party to long maintain their own peculiar idea. Others as strong, as resolute, as convinced, will wrestle for supremacy, and the attacking party will always have force in proportion to the impetus of its movement, and displace the party on the defence if, from number or from any other circumstances, both sections are in tolerable equality. Between right and wrong, such as on the question of slavery, there can be no truce. It must be a fight to the end. But where there are no such considerations, we do not see that any man is dishonoured by suspending his activity in favour of an opinion too weak to maintain its position in the arena, however just. To renounce it would be mean and contemptible; but it is not so to hold it in abeyance where it cannot be successfully enforced. It is therefore within the right of parties to coalesce for the attainment of common objects providing they are not merely personal or the sacrifice of principle for the sake of individual distinction and fame.

We have long had the impression that the only chance of Government fixing itself on a right basis in the colonies is by an union of all men of character and property and education, and the fair compromise of those differences by which they are separated. So long as Government springs from the shifting sands of popular suffrage it will never be stable; but whenever the fixed interests of the country shall have anything like their fair power in the State, we may hope that the slight differences of opinion upon details will not prevent the consolidation of a sound and honest administration.

Whoever may take the reins shall have fair-play from the Herald. We shall probably often dissent from their opinions, and dispute their measures; but never in the spirit of faction. The COWPER party will have the opportunity,—if they have the wisdom to embrace it—to naturalise in this colony the rules and restraints of a truly constitutional opposition.

A CURIOUS case has been recently occupying the Legislature at Adelaide, and will presently occupy the Law Courts, the story of which reads like romance, yet which, if put into a romance, would be condemned as improbable. It is the disputed ownership of a copper mine, and is a singular exemplification of the freaks of fortune.

It is necessary to premise that the law of South Australia allows discoverers of mineral property to take out leases of eighty acres for fourteen years. The regulations provide that applications for leases are to be accompanied by such local description and other information as may serve to identify the spots, and a written statement is also to be made, showing whether the applicant is the original discoverer of the mine or authorised by him.

Under these regulations some new and very valuable copper mines have been opened at Wallaroo, which is situated on the head of Yorke's Peninsula, some hundred miles or so to the north-west of Adelaide. The locality was, and the neighbourhood still is, occupied as pastoral land by one Captain HUGHES, the fortunate proprietor of the first and most productive mine. The whole neighbourhood for miles round has of course been eagerly prospected, and hundreds of claims have been taken up. Captain HUGHES instructed all his shepherds to report to him instantly any mineral discoveries they might make, promising to give them handsome remunerations. In May, 1861, one RYAN, a shepherd on his station, discovered indications of copper. The man, of course, did not know at the time how great was the treasure under his feet. Subsequent workings have opened out a splendid copper-mine. Four dividends have already been declared, two of ten pounds a share, and two of five pounds, and the shares are now quoted at £110 a piece. However, specimens of copper ore had become familiar enough to every body in the locality during the mining mania to justify him in considering that the surface indications he had discovered promised something valuable underground. RYAN is since dead, but according to his wife's evidence, his immediate determination was to unfold his discovery to his employer, in whose fair dealing he had confidence, and he started off to the neighbouring township of Kadina for that purpose. On his way, however, he dropped in upon a friend named DERMODY, to whom he told his tale, and promised a share in his discovery. DERMODY, who had not the slightest idea of what a fortune was to be found by following up the trail, politely explained to RYAN that he was a fool, and advised him to go back and mind his sheep. The latter, however, was too possessed with his discovery to acquiesce in that view of the case, and continued his journey to the township. His employer, Captain HUGHES, was not there, but a brother, Mr. JAMES HUGHES, was. To him RYAN went; but if he was not tipsy when he reached the door, Mr. HUGHES, who knew his intemperate habits, at any rate thought him so, and bundled him out of the house, refusing to have anything to say to him. Thus fortune went a-begging, and for the second time the offer of a magnificent property was rudely declined. RYAN next went to a Mr. HALL, storekeeper and postmaster in the township, whom he knocked up at three o'clock in the morning, and to whom he told the object of his journey. Mr. HALL listened less incredulously and more seriously to his narrative than did the other persons to whom he had unbosomed his secret. Whether RYAN distinctly instructed HALL to write to Mr. HUGHES is not now clear, the evidence not being precise, but it is certain that he borrowed five pounds to take him to Adelaide for the purpose of going to see Captain HUGHES in person, and that Mr. HALL wrote to Captain HUGHES telling him RYAN's story, and stating that the locality was "about ten miles north of Tipara and south of Bald Hills, and about three miles east of Wilkawat Hut." The letter went by post, and RYAN set off on horseback. On his way he passed through a township called Port Wakefield, at the head of St. Vincent's Gulf. Here, as his horse knocked up, he stopped at an inn kept by a man named JOHNSTON, with whom he chummed up, as he had been a shipmate of JOHNSTON's sister. Whether he grew loquacious under the influence of drink, or whether it was owing to his natural garrulity, he disclosed to him also the errand on which he was bound. JOHNSTON at once saw the chance and, as he says, made an agreement with him to go halves. He took RYAN in tow at once, and convoyed him to Adelaide, keeping him, with a publican's instinct, well primed with grog, until the bargain should have been secured. They arrived in Adelaide on Saturday, the 25th of May, but on that very same day the letter from Mr. HALL had reached Captain HUGHES, who, not allowing the grass to grow under his feet, went before noon to the Land Office, and took out a claim. But in taking it out, he, from over anxiety to secure his prize very nearly missed it, for he described the locality only as "about eight or ten miles north of Tipara and south of the Bald Hill," omitting that it was "three miles west of the Wilkawat Hut." He was purposely vague, because he was afraid that if he marked a definite claim on the map the fact would soon get noticed and bruited abroad, and that claims all round would be jumped within a very few hours, and as he could not be sure of the precise spot till he had been on the ground and had it accurately surveyed, he might after all miss the real prize. But in withholding information that would have still further served to identify the spot, he undoubtedly violated the spirit of the regulations, and laid himself open to having his claim superseded by any accurate description that might be handed in. The SURVEYOR GENERAL, who did not know that any information was withheld, accepted the description as sufficient for preliminary purposes, but recommended an immediate survey. Still further to promote concealment, Captain HUGHES took out the claim in the name of one PETERS, and having done that, he started at once with a surveyor to inspect the ground, quite unaware that RYAN his shepherd had just reached town. On the Monday following JOHNSTON, with RYAN still in tow, after an ineffectual attempt to induce one JOLLEY to join them, went to the Land Office to take out the claim, but Boniface had overdosed his victim, for RYAN was so drunk that he could give no intelligible explanation, and they had to leave the Land Office without having transacted any business. Meanwhile RYAN's discovery had got wind, and other parties squeezed in for a share. On returning from the Land Office RYAN was taken to the Black Bull, where a written agreement was drawn up between himself on the one part, and JOHNSTON, THORNTON, and MILLS, on the other, by which £2000 was to be given to RYAN, out of the first profits of the mine, and he was to retain a fifth share in the concern. It was further agreed that the whole party should start the next day for the spot, so as to be able to give a correct description. In the afternoon of the same day RYAN, who must either have been a very loose fish, or else was so muddled that he did not know what he was doing, went to JOLLEY again and tried to make a fresh arrangement with him, but the latter still refused to come into it. Next morning JOHNSTON played false to his new confederates, for he bolted with RYAN, giving the slip to THORNTON and MILLS. They got to Tipara, and there RYAN pointed out to JOHNSTON a place which, however, it is difficult to identify with the real Moonta mine, as it is said to be a mile south-west of it. When they got on to Kadina, they were overtaken by THORNTON and MILLS, who had posted after them. Some hot words passed about the trick that had been played, but ultimately JOHNSTON agreed to show them the place, and to make a fresh agreement. They all went to RYAN's hut, but next morning when they were to go to the ground, RYAN refused to show them the place. Whether he had slept off his debauch and JOHNSTON had forgot en the precaution of bringing a supply of liquor with him, or whether the effect was produced by a letter he received from Captain HUGHES, telling him that he would be on the ground soon, and urging him to tell nobody, certain it is that his original loyalty to his own employer revived, and he vowed he would show no one the place but Captain HUGHES, in whom he could have confidence. As JOHNSTON and THORNTON rode off disconcerted, Captain HUGHES rode up. The first thing RYAN said to him was "Thank God your honour has come to save me from those men, for they have made me drunk for the last seven or eight days, so that I did not know what I was doing." The spot was then pointed out. An accurate plan was made by a professional surveyor, and was forwarded at once to Adelaide, where it was handed in as an amended claim on the 3rd of June. Two days after this, that is on the 5th of June, Captain HUGHES entered into a written agreement with RYAN, as to the division of the property. But on the 3rd of June MILLS also put in a claim for the same property. His claim was somewhat vague, less vague though than Captain HUGHES' original claim, but not so accurate as that gentleman's subsequent claim. But MILLS claims precedence on the ground that his party was the first to be authorised by RYAN the discoverer to make the claim, and that the amended claim of HUGHES did not accompany the application. But on the other side it is contended that this authorisation was given when RYAN was hocussed, and also that it had been substantially anticipated by the letter HALL had written, and by which RYAN's earliest intentions were conveyed to Captain HUGHES through the medium of Mr. HALL. In opposition to this, it is asserted that RYAN was not drunk when he signed the agreement at the Black Bull, but exhibited great shrewdness in making his bargain, and that nothing he said to Mr. HALL compromised him exclusively to Captain HUGHES.

The SURVEYOR-GENERAL returned Mr. MILLS' deposit on the ground that his claim had been anticipated, and the mine has been in possession of Captain HUGHES and his friends. RYAN's widow has already received about five thousand pounds. But the malcontents petitioned the Assembly, and their case was referred to a select committee. Counsel was heard for both parties, and the consequence was a voluminous mass of evidence which can only be matched by one of Mr. DALGLEISH's select committees. The committee, though not unanimously, decided in favour of Mr. MILLS' claim, but the Assembly has declined to adopt the report. The further discussion is adjourned to the Supreme Court. The lawyers who have been half starved since the passing of Torrens' Act are delighted at the prospect. It is not often that they get a chance of such a really "beautiful" case. There will not only be thumping fees for the leading counsel, but junior counsel and solicitors scent fine pickings.

THE MINISTERIAL CRISIS.—Soon after the return of his Excellency the Governor from Parramatta yesterday morning, Mr. Cowper had an interview with him; and at half-past two o'clock in the afternoon, a Cabinet Council was held, at which all the members of the Government were present. We learn that Mr. Cowper did not tender to the Government any advice with regard to the formation of a new Ministry. In the course of the afternoon Mr. Forster was sent for and, after an interview with his Excellency, undertook to endeavour to form a Ministry, requiring until Monday next to carry out that duty. Upon leaving Government House, Mr. Forster proceeded to Mr. Eagar's office, and shortly afterwards Mr. Eagar waited upon Mr. Cowper at the Victoria Club, and remained in conference with him for about an hour. The precise proposals that were discussed can only be surmised, but it is understood that they had reference to the formation of a coalition Ministry, and that they are now under consideration.

MILITARY SETTLERS FOR NEW ZEALAND.—A second detachment of volunteers, consisting of seventy-seven men, leave for Auckland to-day. The men will be under the command of Mr. James Holt and Mr. Brown, and they will go on board the Kate, which is lying at the Patent Slip Wharf, at nine o'clock this morning.

TEA MEETING AT ST. MICHAEL'S SCHOOL-HOUSE.—A social tea meeting was held last night in St. Michael's school-room, Surry Hills. A public meeting took place after tea, and was presided over by the Dean of Sydney, who addressed the persons assembled. Speeches having reference, among other matters, to efforts which it is proposed to make for the liquidation of the debt existing on the parish, were made by the Rev. H. King, who has lately returned from England, and resumed the pastoral oversight of the parish, the Rev. A. Stephen, and the Rev. Mr. Stack. The proceedings were begun and ended with prayer.

NEW SOUTH WALES RIFLE ASSOCIATION. THIRD ANNUAL MEETING.

SECOND DAY

THE weather yesterday was a great contrast to that of the day previous, but it was not on the whole suitable for shooting. The wind was pretty stiff and varied from S.W. to S S.E., and the powerful beams of the sun caused so strong a rarefaction as to affect the eye to a considerable degree.

The two first ranges of the Second and Sixth (All Comers) Matches were shot off yesterday—being at 700 and 800 yards. Messrs. C. Roberts and Sergeant Byrne secured the first and second prizes at 700 yards, and Captain Windeyer and Lieutenant Campbell obtained similar prizes at 800 yards. The highest score made in the two distances completed in the second match is that of Mr. Atkinson, of the East Maitland Company, who made twenty-nine points. For the All-comers Match, Mr. C. W. Roberts and Mr. Ormsby tie with forty-two, and the former gentleman also stands top for the association medal so far.

To-day the 900 yards ranges for both matches will be shot off. The 600 yards for the Leigh cup. The Members' cup, 200 yards range, will conclude the firing.

At three o'clock the Volunteers will be formed in review order, and the prizes will be distributed by Lady Young to the successful competitors.

The following is the result of the three contests yesterday :—

SECOND MATCH.

Prizes: First—£15. Second—£10. To be shot for at 700, 800, and 900 yards, by all competitors who have scored 30 in the first match. Each competitor to have seven shots at the respective ranges, and the highest scorer throughout to be declared the winner.

£25, and the Silver Medal presented by the National Rifle Association of England, and entitling the winner to compete at Wimbledon for H. R. H. the Prince of Wales' prize of £100, will be given to the Volunteer who has made the highest aggregate score throughout the first and second matches.

WOMAN POISONED BY TAKING STRYCHNINE.—A woman named Sarah Stanley committed suicide, by taking strychnine, late yesterday afternoon. The particulars of this distressing incident are as follow. About two o'clock the deceased woman went to the Pack-horse Inn, a public-house in Campbell-street, Haymarket, next door to where she lived, and obtained permission of the landlady to allow her servant maid to take a note to some friends, who reside in Castlereagh-street. The letter was delivered, and soon afterwards two women visited deceased. Having asked them upstairs, the infatuated woman took some strychnine from a medicine-chest in the room, mixed it in a tumbler containing water, and, in the presence of her guests, drank the poison. The unhappy woman died in about a quarter of an hour after taking the draught. Dr. Renwick saw the body between five and six o'clock. It would seem that Mrs. Stanley premeditated self-destruction as well from the circumstances of the case, as from remarks made to a person at an earlier hour of the day. Deceased and her husband kept a small grocer's shop, which they have tenanted about a month. An inquest will be held before the City Coroner, probably to-day, when the facts attending this painful occurrence will be fully investigated.

THE NEWTOWN SCHOOL OF ARTS.—The adjourned annual meeting of this institution was on Thursday evening last further postponed, in consequence of the inclemency of the weather, until next Monday week.

ERRATUM.—We gave in yesterday's Herald a number of extracts concerning the audacity of the five scoundrels who are now infesting the Bathurst district. They were, for the most part, from the Bathurst Times, but the interesting article at the close, commencing—"The audacious visit of Gilbert and his mates to Bathurst," was taken from the Bathurst Free Press, of the 5th instant, and not from the Times.

BATHURST.

THE St. Stephen's Christian Institute was opened in Bathurst on the evening of Thursday, the 24th September, 1863, when an inaugural address was delivered to the members by the Rev. James B. Laughton, B.A., minister of St. Stephen's, Bathurst, and president of the institution.

The Lecturer referred to an address he had delivered eight years previously, on the opening of the Bathurst School of Arts, in order to disabuse the minds of his hearers of any impression that the present movement was designed either to ignore or undervalue the agencies already in operation for promoting popular education. He still thought mechanics' institutes most valuable as a means for elevating, intellectually and morally, the operative classes. But these institutions could not do all that was necessary for making a people truly great and happy. In this Society they were desired to take a step in advance and to occupy higher ground. The object of this Christian Institute was the promotion of the religious, moral, and intellectual culture of its members, and the extension of Christian sentiments and practice among the community. They believed the agencies at present in operation for the attainment of these objects were insufficient, and considered additional efforts necessary. In proof of this necessity he would call their attention to the physical, social, and religious characteristics of Australia. First, as to the physical character of the land, making some allowance for its comparatively recent settlement, the inspired description of the land of Canaan might be applied literally to Australia. Taking all circumstances into consideration, it was fully equal to that of Palestine. With a few inexpensive hydraulic contrivances its fertility would surpass that of Egypt. The aridity of the atmosphere was our only drawback. Our agriculture though rude, was quite equal to that of Canaan, whilst in mineral wealth we surpassed all rivals. We had iron, copper, gold ; and beyond all, coal, which in proper time would enable us to take our stand as a manufacturing people. With a genial climate, the necessaries of life easily obtainable, and labour always in demand, Australia was really a land of promise to the industrial classes. Unhappily those advantages added to the relaxing effect of a warm latitude, induced indolence and begat a taste for sensual gratification and exciting amusements. From this he was led to ask—What is the social condition of the colony ? The criminal element had entered largely into the population during the first fifty years of our history ; and to this had been added, along with a proportion of undoubtedly valuable artisans and labourers, several thousands of the very refuse of the British cities, the literal sweepings of the streets, brought here by fraud under the name of bounty immigrants. This mongrel population, incited by demagogues, clamoured and cried until they obtained representative institutions ; and when the gold discoveries took place nothing but representative government would satisfy them. This they had now got, with manhood suffrage and secret voting ; and in consequence of the elections being in the hands of the uneducated classes, our Legislative chamber contained a large proportion of men wholly unfit for so responsible a position, and a system of profuse expenditure had been encouraged which had saddled the colony with a debt of nearly half a million. Thus, they lived in a land with every natural advantage, but at the same time with a social condition so low that a really desirable class of population was not likely to be attracted to their shores. Wealth was almost the only object of secular pursuit, and there were few social distinctions to excite honourable ambition. Men in all parts of the colony became rich without even the semblance of education ; with very questionable morals, and with no vestige of refinement. Looking now from the moral point of view, they would find the social condition of the colony even less attractive than its political aspect. The old convict taint which still lingered in the blood of the population especially in the interior ; the dislike to regular industry which our young bushmen frequently inherited, or acquired from general example ; the comparative ease with which subsistence might be obtained in a climate so favourable to a gypsy or brigand life—with abundance of food, to be had lawfully or unlawfully for the shooting, and fuel for the gathering ; the impunity which attended the earlier stages of a criminal career, in consequence of the loose notions of property too generally prevalent, besides the inconvenience and expense of prosecutions, and the difficulty of capturing offenders in a mountainous and thickly timbered country ; all these causes, and others which he need not now specify, had combined to promote the growth of a most depraved state of morals. Hundreds of youths were springing up in the bush with no restraining influences of either Church or school, adepts from childhood in all the arts of cattle stealing, and waiting only for some special excitement or temptation to come out full-developed Gardiners or Gilberts. The reign of terror that these bushman heroes had produced was not an exceptional phenomenon, but the natural result of known causes ; a result which though mitigated for a time was sure to recur from time to time as long as the same causes were in operation. Independently of these grosser features there was in the towns and settled parts of the colony a want of taste for intellectual pursuits, and an inclination for debasing pleasures. Moral as well as physical causes were at work here. He attributed it to the fact that political privileges had been conferred on those who did not know their value ; and further to the circumstance that wealth and honours were to be acquired without the necessity for education. This led them to despise all education beyond the mere preliminaries, and tended to foster in them a presumptuous self-willed spirit, not unfrequently accompanied with an imitation of the licentious rowdyism of Young America, reproducing in this colony all the worst features of the worst society of that vaunted republic. Coming now to the religious condition of the colony, he could see in it no ground for complacency. A large proportion of the population were in a state of practical heathenism ; drunkenness and profligacy abounded ; gambling and intemperance were favourite amusements ; God's name was blasphemed and His Sabbath violated. And even those not chargeable with these crimes were in too many cases utterly careless respecting eternity. He could not but deplore that in so favoured a colony so serious a deficiency of religious principle should exist. He admitted that there was a large amount of religious profession, but even these were less than five per cent. of the whole population. The test of regular attendance on public worship would not give more than 10 per cent., or, leaving the bush out of consideration and looking only at the towns, the average attendance at all places of public worship did not exceed 20 per cent. Allow 20 per cent. more for sick, aged, and infants, and 10 per cent for those prevented by necessary duties, there remained 50 per cent. who made no religious profession at all. He was not ignorant however that there were also many who were really striving after Heavenly things ; yet in these the light but too often shone only feebly. They soon grow weary in well-doing, and meet but little success. And to what cause was this to be ascribed ? To natural apathy, worldly conformity, sectarian hostility and internal dissention. He would not enlarge on these topics, but observe that these causes were always more pernicious in small than in large communities. In proof of this he made allusion to England and America, and drew a parallel between them and this colony. He believed, however, that if the leading men in the several Churches here would set themselves conscientiously to the task, it would be quite possible to devise a form of church government combining the advantages and avoiding the disadvantages of the various systems now in existence, and so put an end to sectarian differences. Combination was the great secret of success in arts, science, and manufacture, and it was even still more necessary for the success of the Church of Christ, and Christians should merge their denominational differences in the grand principle of brotherly love. He believed that there were a faithful few in New South Wales, but giving them all the weight due to them the truth could not be concealed, that religion was at a very low ebb in the colony, and the cause of the gospel was making but little progress. He had here shown the evils in existence, and would now ask what were the agencies for counteracting them. First, there were the ordinary means of grace, yet these were insufficient ; for though the Churches throughout the colony had shown great zeal, the great extent of the colony, and the difficulties attending locomotion, prevented much being done. Next, there were the schools, particularly those in which religious instruction was given as an essential branch of education. These were however, as yet but limited in number, and could not reach every corner of the bush. Until some sort of itinerating agency were established, in which the missionary and educational work might possibly be combined, comparatively little would, he feared, be effected in the interior. There were then thirdly mechanic institutes in some few of the larger towns, but these, as he had already said, did not nor could not do all that was required. They addressed themselves to the intellectual and moral parts of our nature, taking no cognisance of the religious element. Fourthly, there were Sabbath schools, forming a very important and desirable agency for the benefit of public morals and religion. Their operations however were limited, and in the most destitute places, where most required, there were none. Thus then, these being the agencies, all insufficient, others were required, and amongst them were such institutions as the one they were that night inaugurating. He was not so sanguine as to imagine that they would meet fully all the wants of the colony ; but he did believe that if they were general they would tend materially to strengthen the hands of the well-affected in the community. After glancing at the constitution of the institute, the advantages of which he pointed out, he showed, in conclusion, that to cultivate the intellect and refine the taste would come short of what ought to be the great end of their lives, the glory of God ; if they did not cultivate at the same time the sentiments and habits which became the Gospel of Christ.

Lord Erskine once reproved a brutal fellow for shamefully beating a horse. "Why," said the fellow, "it's my own. Mayn't I use it as I please ?" and as he spoke he discharged a fresh shower on the raw back of the beast. Lord Erskine, with a stout walking-stick, basted the shoulders of the cowardly offender, who, quite cowed, asked what business he had to touch him with the stick. "Why," replied Lord Erskine, "the stick's my own ; mayn't I use it as I please ?"

A candidate for office, wishing to describe his opponent as a "soulless man," said :—"Some persons hold the opinion that just at the precise moment after one human being dies another is born, and the soul enters and animates the new-born babe. Now, I have made particular inquiries concerning my opponent, and I find that, for some hours before he drew breath, nobody but a donkey died. Fellow citizens, I will now leave you to draw the inference."

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY.

SITTINGS IN BANCO.

BEFORE the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Wise.

THE QUEEN V. CARTER.

This was a special case from the Bathurst Assizes. The prisoner had been convicted of embezzling money—"as a clerk or servant"—the property of his employers Messrs. R. and W. Oakes, storekeepers, of Bathurst. He was employed by the latter as porter. It was shown that he had no general authority to sell goods or to receive money for his employers, but that on some two or three occasions he had taken money, and had in such cases handed it at once to the book-keeper, who had entered the receipt as if the money had been taken by himself. The prisoner, however, had been paid for a case of gin, and the money thus paid had never, it was stated, been received. His defence was that having been called away to attend to other duties he had placed the money on the clerk's desk. The point reserved, however, was whether there had been sufficient evidence to convict the prisoner under the statute of "embezzlement by a clerk or servant."

Their Honors were of opinion that the prisoner must be discharged, there being no evidence that he had ever been authorised to receive money, from which it followed that this was no receipt of money in the ordinary course of his duty. Mr. Justice Wise added that if a different decision had been arrived at he should still have felt it his duty to have submitted a recommendation to his Excellency in favour of the prisoner as the latter had made a statement when called up for judgment which he (the Judge) believed to be true ; and which if the prisoner had made it before the verdict (which he had omitted to do) would, there could be no doubt, have caused an acquittal.

MORRIS, OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE OF FURLONG AND KENNEDY, V. THE BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

This was an application on notice for leave to file certain additional pleas, and to demur to certain replications already on the file. The application was in the nature of an appeal from an order of the Chief Justice. Sitting at nisi prius in August last his Honor had given leave to file additional pleas to set up certain facts—a set off and an adjudication by the Chief Commissioner—on which defendant's relied, but had subsequently disallowed the pleas now sought to be admitted as not being in accordance with such order.

Sir William Manning, Q.C., and Mr. Faucett appeared in support of the application, and Mr. Martin, Q.C., and Mr. Meymott opposed it.

Their Honors refused the application with costs.

LEVY V. MOLISON AND ANOTHER.

This was an application for notice to set aside or vary an order of Mr. Justice Milford, refusing a commission for the examination of witnesses in China.

Mr. Isaacs appeared in support of the application, and Mr. Sheppard in support of the Judge's order.

This was an interpleader suit to determine the right—as to priority—of two judgment creditors. The plaintiff had applied for a commission to examine certain witnesses at Hongkong or Shanghai. It was sworn that these witnesses were material and necessary to the issue, but the facts which they were expected to prove were not stated on affidavit. It was suggested, however, on the one hand that they might be necessary to establish the judgment debtor—Cecil's—sole property of the goods claimed to be levied upon. On the other hand, it was suggested that all needful evidence was already in the colony. Mr. Justice Milford had refused the application on the ground that the materiality of the evidence had not been shown, and that the time would be greatly delayed by granting the commission.

Their Honors enlarged the rule until Tuesday in order that affidavits might be filed as to what these witnesses were expected to prove.

FRESTON V. GIBBES.

Their Honors upon the motion of Mr. Meymott granted a rule nisi returnable on Tuesday, calling upon the plaintiff in a District Court suit to show cause why a prohibition should not go to prevent the issue of a ca. sa. against the defendant William Gibbes.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. Williams, Asher, J. H. Ross, and Cullen.

Seven persons were brought in custody before the Court, one of whom was discharged.

William Franklin, alias Philip Marks, was charged with assault and robbery. Detective Finigan apprehended the prisoner, who said, before he was told the charge, "You have not got the watch, and cannot fix me with it." Charles Fisher deposed that on the 10th ultimo he lodged in Pitt-street, but on returning home at midnight found the house closed, and could not gain admittance ; at the corner of Pitt-street and King-street he saw several men, and inquired where he could find a night's lodging ; one of the number, the prisoner, said he would take him to a good lodging, and conducted him to Brougham-place ; having proceeded a short distance along Brougham-place they came up to two men in conversation with a woman ; prisoner stopped and spoke to them, and after a few minutes one of the men suddenly went behind witness, seized him round the throat, and putting his knee into witness' back, threw him ; the three men then robbed him of his watch and guard, worth £5, and made off. Committed for trial.

Joseph Lewis alias Antonio, a vagrant, was summarily convicted of having stolen a half-pound of tea, the property of George Moss, and was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

Mary Murphy, vagrant, was found guilty of having stolen a workbox, valued at 3s., the property of John Cooper, and was sentenced to be imprisoned three months.

Eliza Cole, charged with having stolen an umbrella, valued at 3s. 6d., the property of John Cole, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to be imprisoned three days.

James Pinkman was brought before the Court on warrant, having neglected to come, in obedience to a summons, charged with having assaulted Joseph Bradley, and pleaded guilty. To pay a penalty of 10s., with 6s. 6d. costs, or to be imprisoned three days.

The summons paper consisted of nine cases. John Thomas Solomon, found guilty of keeping open his public-house during prohibited hours, and John Keenan, for allowing music and dancing in his licensed house without having first obtained permission in writing, were each fined 10s. Elizabeth Rowe and John Bears were fined 2s. 6d. each for opening their shops for the purpose of Sunday trading. In Parker v. Williams, for assault, the defendant was fined 10s. and costs. In Newman v. Smith, an undefended case under the Tenants' Act, an order was made for the plaintiff. Two cases were postponed by consent, and the remaining case was withdrawn.

It has the appearance of a gigantic shield, and shows a surface of extreme beauty, and is altogether a specimen not to be surpassed in Australia. It is about five in length and four feet in breadth, of an irregular form. Another specimen (not so large, but of exquisite beauty) is now being exhibited at Messrs. KIAMA.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

IN my last communication I informed you that the case of wages, Fahy v. Collins, was postponed till Tuesday, 6th October, for further evidence, as from the sworn evidence it appeared to the Bench there was gross perjury, either by the plaintiff or defendant. As, however, the three magistrates who heard the case were absent, I believe unavoidably, the case was further postponed, upon the application of Messrs. Owen and Richards, the attorneys employed by plaintiff and defendant, till Tuesday, the 27th instant. The following is the portion of the evidence taken :—James Fahy being duly sworn saith : I have heard my information read, which is true ; Collins refused and still refuses to pay me the sum of £14 15s wages due to me as his hired servant, in the capacity of farm servant : I asked him for it, and he told me to clear his house quick ; I then went away and got employment elsewhere ; I was hired for six months certain at the rate of thirty-two pounds ten shillings per annum ; I received from the defendant, for the whole period of service, only twenty-five shillings.—Cross-examined by Mr. Owen : I hired for six months under an agreement made in Sydney with defendant ; I never received any money but twenty-five shillings from Collins ; I asked for my wages monthly, but Collins never gave it me ; I have not paid for my washing, but I am willing to pay for it ; Collins' wife washed for me ; she has only washed two dozen and seven for me ; I served with the defendant for six months, except three days, which time Collins allowed me ; the defendant asked me to make up the three days, but I would not stop, as he had beaten me and turned me out of his house.—Dennis Collins, having been sworn, stated that Fahy was hired for him by his agent in Sydney, for six months, at £32 10s per annum, his wages to be paid monthly ; he served me the whole time but a few days ; I gave him leave, but he was to give me the time back ; he never gave me the time back ; he left my service without any reason ; I cannot read or write ; my wife keeps my accounts, and I know her handwriting ; I paid the plaintiff his wages for five months ; I paid him £2 14s. 2d. in money on the 13th of each month, and I got a receipt from him, signed by his mark, on the same day. (Collins here put in five pieces of note paper, cut the same size, purporting to be the receipts given by Fahy for his five months' wages, the words in each case being precisely the same with the exception of the month.) I produce these documents as the receipts from Fahy for his wages as drawn out by my wife ; my wife has a bill for washing for ten dozen pieces ; Fahy refuses to pay it ; he was asked to settle it when he was leaving, he was never asked before ; I never turned him out of my house, and I have never struck him ; I swear I saw my wife draw out monthly the settlements with Fahy, and Fahy put his cross on them ; it was the same pen which drew out the receipts for six months ; I owe him one month's wages only, £2 14s. 2d., subject to the deduction for washing. The Bench questioned the plaintiff respecting the receipts alleged to have been given by him, but he stated he never affixed his mark, nor did he ever see them before.

The inhabitants of Kiama, during the last few days, have taken advantage of an intellectual treat offered them by Mr. C. F. Evereste, entitled "Two Years Wanderings through the Holy Land and Jerusalem," illustrated by a series of exceedingly well executed paintings from sketches taken on the spot. The dioramas and sacred music combined gave much satisfaction to a large number of visitors at the Court House. Mr. Evereste handled his subject very well, and the youths and children in these districts appeared glad of the opportunity to witness an exhibition combining amusement with instruction, and which can hardly fail to afford pleasure and profit to every reader of the Sacred Scriptures.

The number of births, deaths, and marriages at Kiama, for the quarter ending 30th September, is as follows :—Births, 65 ; marriages, 6 ; deaths, 10.

The exports for the week ending October 3 : 363 kegs of butter, 89 pigs, 19 calves, 27 cases of eggs, 19 packages of bacon, and a long list of sundries.

QUEENSLAND.

THE steamer Collaroy brings papers to the 6th instant, from Brisbane.

We quote from the Queensland Daily Guardian as follows :—

That journal of Tuesday, states that during the last session a Board of Enquiry was instituted relative to the operations of the Real Property Act in Queensland. It was admitted on all hands that the measure was one of a very beneficial nature. Its principles were sound and just, and no one was rash enough to deny that the "Act to Simplify the Laws relating to the Transfer and Encumbrance of Freehold and the interests in Land," was a measure of great benefit to the community generally. The task, however, of carrying out this Act in its integrity involved the creation of a new Government department. This department is presided over by a very efficient public servant, viz., Mr. Darvall. It appears that the number of persons who wish to bring their landed property under the provisions of the Act of Mr. Torrens, which has been adapted to this colony, is very numerous—much more numerous in fact than was at first anticipated. The consequence is that the work of the office of Mr. Darvall, the Registrar-General of Queensland, has got into arrears. A Board of Inquiry was therefore appointed last session in order to inquire into the working of the Registrar-General's Department. The report of that Board, composed of the Attorney-General, and Messrs. Little and Lilley, is highly complimentary to the department conducted by Mr. Darvall, the Registrar, and tends to prove that the office under his control pays its own expenses, contributes to the revenue, and is in fact profitable to the Government.

The Government Gazette of 3rd instant, contains a proclamation of the boundaries of a new gold-field to be designated the Calliope gold-field, the description of which runs as follows :—Commencing at the top of Elizabeth Pie Mountain, and bounded thence on the west by a line south until it strikes the range forming the watershed of Leslip Creek ; thence by that range to the main range, forming the watershed of the Boyne and Calliope Rivers ; thence by that spur to the Elizabeth Pie Mountain.

The Guardian of the 3rd says :—One of the notorious Eugowra Creek robbers who stuck up the Lachlan gold escort together with Gardiner and Johnny Gilbert and others, was seen from our office passing down Queen-street shortly since. He is a smart, good looking, and well informed young Irishman, and there is no better horseman in Australia. For obvious reasons we refrain from publishing his name, although we may venture to state that he is now employed by one of our most active and straightforward members of Parliament.

The Burnett Argus mentions that the first wool of the season from the station of Toondoon, passed through Gayndah on Wednesday last, on its way to the shipping port.

A most valuable discovery has been made by Mr. Challenger, who is at present quarrying on the ridge beyond York's Hollow. The facts are as follow :—Mr. Challenger finding that a great quantity of stone dust had accumulated in the process of quarrying, which appeared to him very like the reduced powder from which stoneware is manufactured, gave a quantity of this powder to S. Taylor, a brickmaker in York's Hollow, and requested him to make it into bricks. Taylor at first threw cold water on the idea, but was eventually induced to throw cold water on the powder and convert the same into some twenty bricks, dried them in the usual manner, and put them with other bricks into his kiln and fired it and upon opening it was astonished to find the bricks manufactured from the stone dust turn out sound and perfect. They are nearly as hard as flint, clean, well shaped, and slightly vitrified.

LOST AND FOUND.—The Queensland Times of 1st instant states that great anxiety had been felt in Ipswich on account of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Mr. G. H. Hall, editor of that journal. It appears that on Tuesday morning he left his home, taking his fowling-piece with him, and stating that he was going towards the Rosewood for some shooting. As he had been in the habit of going out alone with his gun no anxiety was felt until it was found that he had not been home that night. On Wednesday morning information was given to the police, and two mounted troopers went in search of the missing gentleman. They returned at dusk without having discovered any traces of him, although they had examined the bush carefully between the Bremer and Brisbane Rivers. Messrs. Given, Shenton, and Blaine also went out in the same direction, and returned after several hours' fruitless search. In Saturday's issue of the Times the following announcement appears :—It is with great pleasure that we mention the safe arrival in town, last evening, of Mr. Hall, whose mysterious disappearance has cast such a gloom over the town for the last two days. It seems that after that gentleman had proceeded some distance on Tuesday morning, he felt faint and overpowered with the heat, which was very oppressive for this time of the year. While going towards a cluster of trees for shade, he suddenly became insensible, and so lay till daylight next morning, when he partially recovered and looked for water, which he succeeded in finding, and stayed by it all day, continuing to drink at intervals, but too weak to make any efforts to move about. In the evening (Wednesday) he lit a fire near the water and camped there all night. The rain yesterday morning considerably revived him, and, after waiting under shelter some time to see if the weather would clear up, Mr. Hall found himself sufficiently recovered to ascend a little hill, from whence he saw the Pine Mountain. After taking bearings with a pocket compass he always carried with him, he shaped his course homewards, and soon afterwards fell in with a lad of the name of Marsh, son of a neighbour of his, on the Ironbark Range, about six miles from town. This youth had been in the direction of the Rosewood in search of Mr. Hall, and was then making tracks for home. After having given his gun and shot-pouch to young Marsh, he told the latter to go on. On the news reaching Ipswich, a party immediately started off to meet Mr. Hall, guided by young Marsh ; this party brought him into Ipswich about half-past six on Friday evening, very much exhausted.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—A very remarkable case of abstinence from food has just been brought under our notice. An inmate of her Majesty's gaol, Brisbane, named James Donohue, has, during forty days, totally abstained from food. It appears that on the morning of the 16th August last he proceeded, in company with other prisoners, to the scene of labour in the Queen's Park. The man worked very heartily till one o'clock, that being dinner time. The usual allowance of food was given to each person, but on Donohue's allowance being presented to him he declined to accept it, which rejection was reported by the turnkey in charge immediately on his return to the gaol the same evening. When tea time arrived Donohue again declined, and he thus rejected his food for three days in succession. Meantime he was not allowed to leave the precincts of the gaol. The case was then reported to the visiting surgeon, who immediately examined the man, and pronounced his faculties to be in a healthy condition, at the same time warning him not to decline eating his food any more ; but this advice was of no avail, for when it was again offered to him Donohue would not accept of his food. The fact was again reported to the surgeon, and another examination took place, but the result was the same. Donohue was repeatedly solicited by the surgeon, and several of the turnkeys, to give the reason why he pursued such a course, and his only response was, "I don't know." A fortnight passed away without his eating anything, when his body exhibited considerable emaciation, and all the symptoms consequent upon his fast. Donohue being a member of the Roman Catholic Church, the nature of the case was communicated to the chaplain, who exercised what power he could in endeavouring to get him to break his fast, and he also warned the misguided man of his awful position, but without success. Donohue rejected his food (notwithstanding the powerful appeals made to him by those who had intercourse with him) for the almost incredible period of forty days. When the fourth week had passed away without his breaking his fast, and his body was reduced to an unsightly state, he became the subject of much wonder to those acquainted with the circumstances of the case, not only from the fact of his wonderful fast, but from his having no desire to eat anything. He thus went on till the thirty-ninth day, when it was resolved, to prevent him committing suicide, to force food into his stomach. But on Friday last, the fortieth day, the mystery was solved. The Right Rev. Bishop Quinn visited the man, and had a lengthy conversation with him, the result being that he succeeded in getting him to eat a little bread and butter, which materially affected him. After he had thus yielded, he was asked his reason for committing such an offence, when he said—"I have been a vagabond and a scamp since I have been in the world ; but on the 16th day of August last I formed a resolution that I would turn over a new leaf, and live a different life. I also said that I would punish myself for my past sins by fasting, as Jesus Christ did, for the period of forty days. I have accomplished that task, and from this time forth I intend to eat my food." He has eaten his food, but it had a wonderful effect upon him. He lost the use of his mental faculties on Sunday night, and for the time was like a raving maniac. He is now in the gaol, and the truthfulness of this remarkable case may be realised by paying him a visit.—The Courier, September 30.

THE TOWER OF LONDON.—Few persons are aware of the strictness with which the Tower of London is guarded from foes without and treachery within. The ceremony of shutting it up every night continues to be as solemn and as rigidly precautionary as if the French invasion were actually afoot. Immediately after tattoo all strangers are expelled ; and, the gates once closed, nothing short of such imperative necessity as fire or sudden illness can procure their being re-opened till the appointed hour the next morning. The ceremony of locking up is very ancient, curious, and stately. A few minutes before the clock strikes the hour of eleven—on Tuesdays and Fridays at twelve—the head warden (yeoman porter), clothed in a long red cloak, bearing in his hand a huge bunch of keys, and attended by a brother warden, carrying a gigantic lantern, appears in front of the main guard-house, and calls out in a loud voice, "Escort keys !" At the words the sergeant of the guard, with five or six men, turns out and follows him to the Spur or outer gate ; each sentry challenging as they pass his post :—"Who goes there ?" "Keys." The gates being carefully locked and barred—the warden wearing as solemn an aspect and making as much noise as possible—the procession returns, and the sentries exact the same explanation and receive the same answer as before. Arrived once more in front of the main guard-house, the sentry there gives a loud stamp with his foot, and the following conversation takes place between him and the approaching party—"Who goes there ?" "Keys." "Whose keys ?" "Queen Victoria's keys." "Advance Queen Victoria's keys, and all is well." The yeoman porter then exclaims—"God bless Queen Victoria." The main guard devoutly respond "Amen." The officer on duty gives the word "Present arms," the firelocks rattle, the officer then kisses the hilt of his sword, the escort fall in among their companions, and the yeoman porter marches majestically across the parade ground alone to deposit the keys in the lieutenant's lodgings. The ceremony over, not only is all egress and ingress totally precluded, but those within being furnished with the countersign, anyone who, unhappily forgetful, ventures from his quarters unprovided with this talisman is sure to be made the prey of the first sentinel whose post he crosses.

CERTIFICATES AS TO CAUSES OF DEATH.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—Will you kindly give insertion to the following queries, and oblige,

Your obedient servant,

CHIRURGEON.

Can the Registrar-General compel medical men to furnish certificates as to the cause of death of patients without payment; and if so, under what Act?

[The question is a doubtful one. The Registration Act 19 Victoria, No. 34, under which the Registrar-General acts, contains no provision of the kind alluded to. But that Act (section 6) gives the Registrar-General power "to make regulations, from time to time, for the management of the general registry, and to be observed by the district registrars;" and it enacts that such regulations, when approved by the Governor in Council, and gazetted, "shall be as binding on all parties affected thereby as if they formed part of that Act." This power would not authorise the making of any regulations not clearly within the scope of the Act, and we can scarcely imagine that it would be held within such scope to impose a gratuitous duty upon professional men. The making and gazetting of any such regulation will not necessarily render it good law. It will not be so if at all in excess of the powers given by the Act. In the form for registry of a death on shipboard which is appended to this Act a statement of who was the medical attendant (if any), and when he saw deceased last, as well as of the cause of death, is included, but there is nothing about a separate certificate. If the giving of a medical certificate can be legally enforced, it must, we should imagine, be paid for by the representatives of the patient, if payment be demanded. Whether the Registrar-General can in any case enforce the giving of such a certificate is a question of law which can only be determined by the courts on some case arising out of a refusal to give one.]

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—A misstatement that the Church of England possesses Glebe land at Windsor, to the extent of 400 acres, made some time ago in the Legislative Council, and contradicted at the time in your columns, has again found currency in a letter of Archbishop Polding, published in the Herald of last Monday. I beg leave again to correct this error.

The Church of England Glebe, at Windsor, consists altogether of forty acres, not 400. It is divided into two portions—one of thirty-two acres, about two miles from the town; the other of eight acres, within the town boundary; but the whole amounts to only one-tenth of what the Archbishop's letter represents it to be.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

HENRY T. STILES.

HOUSEWIFERY.—An ancient art, said to have been fashionable among young girls and wives, but now entirely out of use, or practised only by the lower orders.

The best part of human qualities is the tenderness and delicacy of feel in little matters, the desire to soothe others—minutiæ of the social virtues. Some ridicule these feminine attributes, which are left out of many men's natures; but we have known the brave, the intellectual, the eloquent, to possess these qualities; the braggart, the weak, never.

A comparative statement of the Consolidated Revenue of the colony of New South Wales, and of the special funds paid into the Treasury, at Sydney, during the quarter ended 30th September, 1862, and 30th September, 1863, respectively, shewing the increase and decrease under each head thereof, is published in to-day's Gazette.

From this statement we find that the total revenue for the past quarter amounted to £397,923 13s. 9d., against, in 1862, £431,643 13s. 7d. There is therefore a decrease on the quarter of £33,719 19s 10d., or 7½ per cent.

The deficiency is owing to a considerable falling-off in our Customs', gold, and Mint receipts, and also in the land revenue. In the postage receipts, fees of office, and pilotage rates, there is a small decrease, but to no amount.

The heads of revenue which show an increase are licenses, rents (exclusive of land), railway receipts, electric telegraph, tonnage dues, and miscellaneous receipts.

The following is an abstract of revenue, showing the increase and decrease:—

The Customs' revenue for the third quarter of 1863 was £115,338 1s. 2d., against, in 1862, £138,701 3s. 2d. Decrease, £23,263 2s., or 17 per cent. The decrease is in spirits, tea, sugar, and molasses, but in wine, ale and beer, tobacco, coffee, and chicory, and opium there is a slight increase.

The duty on spirits distilled in the colony amounted during the past quarter to £2921 3s 9d.; for 1862, £8341 19s. 9d. Decrease, £5420 16s, or sixty-five per cent.

The duty on refined sugar and molasses for the quarter ended the 30th of September, 1862, was £4916 13s 4d. This head of revenue was not kept separate until this year, but the duty was collected under the head of Customs.

The amount of gold receipts for the third quarter of 1863 was £9063 4s. 7d., against, in 1862, £24,952 6s. 6d.: decrease, £15,916, or 60 per cent. The Mint receipts for the quarter amounted to £6310 7s. 6d. against £9421 2s. in 1862. Decrease, £3110 14s. 6d., or 33 per cent.

Under the head of Land revenue, the amount received during the last quarter was £143,725 17s. 10d. For 1862 it reached £164,889 18s. 1d. Decrease, £11,164, or 7 per cent.

The Postage receipts for the past quarter amounted to £15,155 18s. 9d. For 1862, £15,597 18s. 9d. Decrease, £442, or 3 per cent.

The amount of licenses collected during the third quarter of 1863 was £9984 5s.; during 1862, £9161 10s. 7d. Increase, £823, or 9 per cent.

Fees of office in the third quarter of 1863 amounted to £6111 5s. 1d., for 1862, £6577 11s. 7d. Decrease, £466, or 7 per cent.

Fines and forfeitures in 1863 amounted to £929 19s., against £923 14s. 7d. in 1862. Increase, £6.

The amount received for rents, exclusive of land, for the third quarter 1863, was £5784 6s. 1d. For 1862, £5405 5s. 2d. Increase, £380, or 6 per cent.

The Railway receipts for the past quarter amounted to £31,024 7s. 11d, against £25,612 4s. 5d, in 1862. Increase, £5412 3s. 6d., or 20 per cent.

Electric Telegraph receipts amounted to £5612 12s. 7d. in 1862, against £7523 2s. 5d. in 1863. Increase, £1910 9s. 10d., or 35 per cent.

Pilotage rates for the third quarter of 1863 amounted to £3677 3s. 4d.; for 1862, £3994 2s. 2d. Decrease, £316 19s. 6d.

The other small heads of revenue—tonnage dues, Newcastle immigration remittances, commission on money orders, and rates under Chinese Act, show a trifling increase.

The amount received as interest on City debentures in 1863 was £5000, against nil in 1862.

Under the head of miscellaneous receipts there was an increase of about £7000, caused principally by the interest on bank deposits and other receipts. The special receipts, however, show a small decrease of about £130.

Export entries were passed at the Customs to-day on 2307 ozs. 7 dwts. of gold dust for shipment to Hongkong per Norwood and Shawmut.

The amount of gold coin issued by the Sydney branch of the Royal Mint during the week ended (to-day) October 9th, has been 16,000 sovereigns.

The quantity of gold dust imported into the same establishment during the week for the purpose of coinage has been 3437 ozs.

The Western and Southern Escorts have arrived during the week from our several goldfields, and have delivered at the Sydney Branch of the Royal Mint the following quantities of gold dust:—Southern: From Braidwood, 1541 oz. 13 dwts. 14 grs. Northern: From Tambaroora, 188 oz. 11 dwts.; Nundle, 417 oz.; Tamworth, 134 oz.; Rocky River, 863 oz. 14 dwts. 12 grs. Total, 3144 oz. 19 dwts. 2 grs.

There has been a fair amount of business transacted in the share market this week, but the fluctuations in prices have not been of much importance. Bank shares continue firm. Australian Joint Stock Bank shares are inquired for, and would command an advance in quotations, but there are none at present offering. Bank of New South Wales shares are steady, and a small sale has been made at an advance of 10s. per share on the last price quoted. Commercial Bank shares have been dealt in to some amount at quotations. City Bank shares are not so firm in consequence of buyers preferring to wait until they see what directors are elected. Sales have been made at 12s. 6d. per share premium, but to-day they have been offered at 10s. premium.

In Steam shares there is no alteration to notice in prices.

There have been several transactions in Insurance shares. Pacific Fire and Marine have improved 2s. 6d. per share, and United Fire and Marine have declined 6d. per share. The following are the prices at which sales have been made during the week:—Bank of New South Wales, £51 and £51 10s. per share. Commercial Bank, £52 10s. per share. City Bank, 12s. 6d. premium per share. Australasian Steam Navigation Company, £28 5s. per share. New shares, £10 15s. per share. Illawarra Steam Navigation Company, £4 5s. per share. New South Wales Marine Assurance Company, £3 6s. per share. Pacific Fire and Marine Insurance Company, £4 7s. 6d. and £4 10s. per share. United Fire and Marine Insurance Company, 25s. and 25s. 6d. per share. Australian Gas Light Company, £13 5s. per share. Peak Downs Copper Mine, £4 per share.

DEBENTURES.—There have been no sales of Government debentures this week, and prices are unaltered.

Business during the week has been a little more animated, but, with the exception of low sugars, which rule higher, prices are in almost all instances unaltered. The commercial news from England, as contained in our telegram, is regarded as satisfactory; and as there appears to be a considerable decrease in the shipments to the colonies, prices of those articles which have declined considerably lately may be expected to recover in some degree.

TOBACCO AND CIGARS.—The principal business of the week in tobacco has been an auction sale by Stokes, Craig, and Co., of some 200 boxes of Southern 10's and half-pounds, the whole of which were readily disposed of at improved market rates. Dullness of trade prevents any wholesale transactions in cigars; bulk of stocks held by one house.

Mr. R. Forbes reports the sale of "Cacopera," situated in the Lachlan district, without stock, for £300.

A MODERATE amount of business has been done in the share market this week, and there is no alteration in price.

The Bank of Australasia has declared the dividend at the rate of 14 per cent per annum as before.

My sales this week consist of

[LENNON AND CAPE.]

We have to report another quiet week in our share market. We have enquiries for Commercials, Joint Stocks, Pacific, Insurance, and Sydney Insurance; but the market is bare unless at an advance on last quotations. City Bank's are dull, and some few parcels are offering at a decline on last sales. United's are offering at £1 5s, and Peak Downs' at £4. In Bank New South Wales, Australasian Steam, and Wallsend Coal shares, there is an upward tendency.

Our sales during the week have been in Commercial Bank, at £52 10s.

City Bank, at £1 12s 6d.

Australian Gas Company, at £13 5s.

Pacific Fire and Marine, at £4 7s 6d.

PRODUCE, STOCK, AND STATION CIRCULARS.

[MORT AND CO.]

WOOL.—Our yesterday's weekly sale showed a decided dullness in this market. Although there was the usual attendance buyers would not operate except at such a reduction as we could not submit to, consequently the bulk of the wool offered was withdrawn. We catalogued 69 bales and have sold 24. The only lots worthy of note were Hill, 6 bales, scoured, which brought 25d, and Ifield, 9 bales, scoured, 21½d.

Sheepskins.—Full rates were maintained. Over 4000 were placed at from 6½d to 7½d.

Tallow.—The market also very dull. Of 99 casks catalogued for yesterday's sale we sold only 25 casks, the highest price obtained for beef tallow being £32 15s per ton.

Hides.—This market also continues dull. We catalogued over 2000, and sold only about 600. Inferior and light almost unsaleable. Two lots of heavy weights brought 14s.

For particulars of sale see at foot.

[DURHAM AND IRWIN.]

WOOL.—There was a better disposition to purchase this day, owing to the favourable news of the English market. This, however, will have little or no influence on this market further than to give more impetus to sales without advance in price. 86 bales were brought forward this day, of which 10 bales of fleece were disposed of privately, previous to auction sale, at 20½d. The remainder sold thus:—Mixed, hat over Yanawah, 1 bale at 11½d; locks, ditto, 1 ditto at 14d; clippings, WB over Gingan, 1 ditto at 11½d; grease, SC over Q, 2 ditto at 7½d; fleece, WB over Gingan, 1 ditto at 19½d; mixed, SC over Q, 2 ditto at 9d; pieces, W, 2 ditto at 9½d; mixed, H, 1 ditto at 12d; ditto, Q, 1 ditto at 9½d; ditto, L, 1 ditto at 7½d; skin, A and S over Cleveland, 1 ditto at 10d; ditto, ditto, 1 ditto at 15d; grease, FH, 13 ditto at 5½d per lb.

Sheepskins.—Last week's prices have been well maintained. The lots offered at auction have been taken thus:—H, 1 bundle at 6½d; RC, 1 at 7d; TW, 2 at 6½d, hat over Yanawah, 18 at 7d; ditto, 1 bale at 6½d; JN, 2 bundles at 7½d; JH, 1 ditto at 7½d per lb.

Tallow.—The market is very depressed, and lower rates are likely to rule. 61 casks were catalogued and sold, realising the following prices, viz.: SC over G, 1 at 32s 3d; CK, 1 at 32s 6d; XX, 1 at 30s 6d; McA, 3 at 31s 9d; P, 35 at 30s; W. Bell, 6 at 31s 6d; W, 3 at 32s 6½d; A, 6 at 30s; 3 at 30s 3d per cwt.

Hides.—Over 1730 were catalogued for this day's sale, of which over 1500 were disposed of at full market rates, one fair parcel averaging 60lbs., realised 13s 3d. Prices throughout were as follows:—46 at 4s 3d; 27 at 7s 9d; 72 at 11s; 35 at 9s 6d; 74 at 12s 9d; 23 at 10s 3d; 12 at 7s; 14 at 12s 6d; 174 at 10s 3d; 101 at 8s 6d; 102 at 11s; 35 at 11s 6d. Calfskins: 17 at 1s 6d; 100 at 1s 3d each. Horns at 11s and 12s per 100. Shank bones at £5 10s and £7 10s per ton. Hair, 5d per lb.

9th October.

[W. DEAN AND CO.]

Wool.—Since our last report there has been no sufficient arrival of the new clip to test the market. The news received by telegram will, if confirmed on arrival of the steamer, have a tendency to maintain prices. 149 bales catalogued, 58 sold.

Sheepskins.—All offered, about 5300, have been sold at from 6½d to 7½d.

Tallow.—The market slightly lower. 165 casks have been catalogued, 71 sold.

Hides.—No alteration in prices for first-class hides, but we look for an improvement very shortly. 2491 catalogued, 1221 sold.

We sold on Tuesday, 8, 2 lots sheepskins, 6½d 6½d; 12 casks Newington No. 1 beef tallow £44 7s 6d, 20 ditto ditto £44 3s, 4 casks Newington mutton tallow £46; 240 hides (Newington) 13s, 120 ditto ditto 12s 6d, 28 hides 10s 9d, 41 ditto 6s 9d. We have also sold privately 310 Newington hides 12s 9d.

[O. B. ENSWORTH.]

WOOL.—At auction to-day the regular buyers attended in some numbers, but there was no anxiety to purchase, and a lot of the new clip from the north was withdrawn, although the wool would have been sold had any reasonable offer been made. Another lot, in the grease, realised 8½d per lb., but it was seedy. Mixed wools brought 10½d to 14½d, and mixed fleece wool (old clip), 1s 5½d per lb.

Sheepskins maintain their value, and have realised 6d to 7½d, according to quality.

Tallow.—The whole withdrawn from sale; market very inactive, and trade not purchasing.

Hides.—Scarcely anything doing, and the whole lot catalogued was withdrawn from sale, and only one lot was placed privately, medium weights, at 10s each.

Wool: mixed, BY in diamond, 1 bale at 1s 2d; locks, B&T, 2 bales at 10d; grease, TR, 16 ditto at 8½d; mixed, Rf over H&O, 1 bale at 10½d; fleece, ditto, 3 bales at 15½d; broken and pieces, ditto, 4 ditto at 1s 2½d; clippings, ditto, 1 bale at 1s 2½d. Sheepskins: B&T, 4 bundles at 6½d; BY in diamond, 4 bales at 1s 0½d. Tallow: 114 casks at 10s.

October 8th.

[THOMAS DAWSON.]

Fat Cattle.—There has been a decided improvement through the week. Prime mobs are worth to-day, from £4 10s to £5 1 s. I sold yesterday, at the Victoria Yards, Petersham, 101 head, branded CMK, at from £4 5s to £5 8s—average £5, which is another proof of the great advantage the squatter would derive by bringing his stock close to market.

Fat Sheep.—Market firm at last week's quotations, viz., 4d per lb. for prime full-fleeced, at which price I have effected sales through the week.

Store Stock.—Nothing to report.

Horses.—The demand for first-class animals is good, and likely to continue so for some time to come.

Milch Cows.—There has been more briskness in the market during the last week than for months past. I sold several at the depot yesterday, at from £3 to £8.

Produce Sale, Railway Auction Depot.—The supply of calves was small. Lambs are getting much more plentiful, consignments constantly arriving. Pigs are in good demand. Poultry continues scarce. Butter steady; cheese scarce. Prices obtained: Calves 8s to 41s, lambs 6s to 22s, pigs 15s to 70s, roasters 4s 6d to 9s 6d, fowls 4s 10d to 5s 3d, ducks 6s to 7s 6d, turkeys 12s to 25s, geese 6s to 7s 6d, guinea fowls 5s to 5s 6d, pigeons 1s 6d to 2s, butter (keg) 9d to 1s 1d, roll 1s 1d to 1s 3d, bacon 5d to 8½d, cheese 3d to 9½d, lard 4½d to 10d, eggs 9½d to 1s 1d per dozen, hides 4s to 11s, hay (oaten) £8 to £9, lucerne £4 10s to £5, straw £3 to £6 per ton.

8th October.

[R. FORBES.]

Fat Cattle.—This market is full of inferior mobs, which operates on middling stock more than on very prime cattle. Some mixed have been sold at £2 17s 6d, and as high as £5 per head has been paid for 100 bullocks of a very superior class.

Fat Sheep.—Good sheep are scarce. Any choice wethers, wool on, are worth 15s to 16s; second, but middling, will command 12s to 12s 6d.

Store Sheep.—Prices are very firm and without alteration. They are in Queensland and New South Wales, for maiden ewes, 14s to 17s; breeding ewes 14s.

9th October.

[FATTORINI AND CO.]

Sheep Stations.—No transactions. Purchasers are waiting till shearing is over.

Cattle Stations.—No alteration. We have sold the Unumgar station, on the Richmond River, with 700 head of mixed cattle, at £ 3s per head cash. Stores, implements, &c., at a valuation.

Store Stock.—There is a demand for good breeding sheep, delivery after shearing.

Fat Cattle, enquiries are made for mobs to the northward.

9th October.

[PITT AND SULLIVAN.]

Fat Cattle.—Market more brisk this week, and prices improved. Really good, in demand. We quote best cattle, worth from £4 to £5; middling, according to quality.

Fat Sheep.—Market steady, at former quotations, and good in demand, say—wethers to average 56lbs., worth 16s to 17s.

We have this week sold the following cattle, namely—295, Healy, at £4; 113, Cornish, at £3 17s 6d; 240, Forrester's, £4; 150, Windham's, at £4; 100, R. W. Cox's, at £5; 50, Windham's, at £3; 76 ditto, at £4.

7th October.

LABOUR MARKET.

[HAIGH AND BROWN.]

OUR market is numerously attended by servants of almost every description. The demand for labour is moderate. The supply of female servants is in excess of present requirements. Rates of wages continue as per late reports, except for females, whose engagements are made at a somewhat lower figure.

October 9.

HORSE MARKET.

MR. CHARLES MARTYN reports:—The sales have been brisk during the past week, and the continued absence of any large lots of fresh stock tends to keep up prices. First-class heavy draught horses are each week becoming more and more scarce, until it has become almost impossible to supply orders for them. I have just received an extensive order for powerful, thoroughly broken, and stanch draught horses and mares, on account of the British Government for New Zealand. Thursday was the first day of purchasing, and about 40 head of those submitted then and on Friday for the inspection of the authorities, were approved of and purchased. I would strongly advise my country customers who possess this kind of stock—especially heavy mares—to avail themselves early of the present favourable opportunity for disposing of them. Two heavy colonial-bred draught stallions were disposed of privately for shipment. The demand this season for stallions is very limited.

MESSRS. BURT and Co. report an active market for all classes of well broken serviceable stock. Since last report we have completed and despatched, per Spitfire, a shipment of fifty-two horses to Calcutta; they comprise selections from the studs of Messrs. A and W. Busby, Cassilis; C. Reynolds, Tocal; Mr. W. Dangar, of Neotsfield; and other well known breeders. The prices given ranged from £25 to £120 each. We have also disposed of 40 cart horses, for the service of the Imperial Government at New Zealand, at from £25 to £60 each. At the Camperdown Sale Yards, a lot of 30 colts, from Goulburn, bred by Mr. O'Byrne, realised from £5 to £16; 30 colts and mares, bred by J. S. Rodd, Esq., from £3 to £18; other lots at about same rates.

STATION AND STOCK REPORTS.

[THOMAS CADELL.]

STATIONS.—I have some excellent stations for sale, both in this colony and Queensland.

Fat Cattle.—Prime cattle realise fair rates, as the season is likely to be good, we must expect fat cattle will be very plentiful, consequently high rates cannot rule. I anticipate that good lots of cattle will sell well in about a fortnight, as the late heavy rains up country will tend to retard mustering for a time. Quotations: £3 10s to £5 10s for good to prime cattle, very superior selected yards at higher rates.

Fat Sheep.—A flock arrived during the week, but were not of prime quality, consequently the trade did not buy largely at auction. A flock of really prime wethers, full fleeced, would realise from 14s to 16s. Quotations, 13s to 16s for good to prime.

Store Cattle.—I have large mobs for sale at low rates. At present this market is very dull. The beautiful season will enable stockowners to send large lots of cattle to market, even for boiling purposes; which, in my opinion, will be more profitable than selling on stations at 22s 6d per head. Quotations—store cattle, 22s 6d to 25s. Terms, cash.

Store Sheep.—I have very superior lots for sale, both in this colony and on the borders of Queensland, all guaranteed free from scab. I anticipate effecting some large sales after shearing is over. Young ewes are in demand, also store wethers for fattening purposes. Quotations at present nominal.

Horses.—Useful saddle and harness horses realise fair rates.

Working Bullocks.—Well matched teams sell fairly.

Milch Cows.—Heifers and steers will realise full rates.

Wool.—Bright clips free from seed sell well. Greasy wools, if light and clean, can be quitted at fair rates. New clips will soon be to hand.

Tallow.—Beef sells well to town trade.

Hides are dull of sale. Prime heavy, 10s to 11s.

Sheepskins, 4d to 6d per lb.

Land and Estates, and House Properties.—Rich alluvial land is in demand; house properties dull of sale.

[DODDS AND CO.]

Fat Cattle.—There has been a good number of fat cattle in the yards this week, selling at £4 15s up to £8 10s each. We sold a draft of Mr. White's cattle this week from Martindale, at £8 10s to £8 10s 6d; boilers at 28s each.

Mixed Cattle.—We have sold 150 head of this description of stock, at 17s 6d to 21s each.

Working Bullocks are selling fairly, and worth from £9 to £10 per pair.

Horses.—Heavy draught horses and good useful saddle horses are selling well. A great number of unbroken horses are continually in the market.

Fat Sheep.—We sold a flock of sheep in Maitland, at 10s to 11s each; they were principally bought to keep on, as they were not good enough for the trade. Ewes, for shipment, are wanted, and good prices can be had if ready for immediate delivery.

Hides are worth 10s to 11s each. We sold a large lot of hides this week at 10s each.

Furniture sells well at auction.

Farming land is much enquired after. Allotments dull of sale.

GOULBURN MARKETS.

Wheat, 6s. 6d. to 7s. per bushel

Flour—fine, £21; seconds, £20 per ton

Bran and pollard, 1s 9d per bushel.

Maize, 4s. 6d to 5s. per bushel

Oats, 6s. to 7s. per bushel

Hay, £5 to £6 per ton.

Barley, 5s 6d. to 6s. per bushel.

Potatoes, 5s. to 5s. 6d. per cwt.

Salt Butter, 9d. per lb.

Fresh ditto, 1s per lb.

Bacon, 4½d. to 5½d. per lb.

Cheese, 6d. to 7d. per lb.

Eggs, 9d per dozen

Fat Cattle—have declined slightly; prime bringing from £4 to £5 per head; second quality £3 10s. to £3 15s.

Sheep, will bring 11s. to 14s.

Pigs, 3d. to 4d per lb.

Horses—as usual, almost unsaleable unless of good description; of such there are none in the market.

MR. PEABODY'S DWELLINGS FOR THE POOR.

(From the Illustrated London News, July 18th.)

THE building is situated at the corner of Commercial-street and White Lion-street, Spitalfields, near to the Eastern Counties Railway Station. It is built entirely of brick, and has a frontage of 215 feet 6 inches towards Commercial-street, and of 140 feet towards White Lion-street.

The Commercial-street wing contains nine shops, with dwellings and stores attached, occupying the basement, ground, and first floors. Above these, on the second and third floors, are twenty-seven dwellings for the poor, with entrances entirely distinct from those of the shops. The fourth or topmost floor is occupied with laundries, baths, and areas for drying clothes and the use of children in wet weather.

The White Lion-street wing contains thirty dwellings for the poor, which occupy the ground, first, second, and third floors, the fourth, or topmost floor, being arranged, as that in Commercial-street, for the purposes of washing clothes, &c.

The dwellings consists of one, two, and three rooms, situated on each side of a wide and well ventilated corridor. They are supplied with large, well-lighted cupboards, cooking range, oven, boiler, hot plate, &c. Lavatories, &c., are provided on each floor. Dust shafts extend from the roof to the basement, where large dust bins are provided with separate access from the yard. The living rooms average thirteen feet by ten feet, and the bedrooms thirteen feet by eight feet. Their height is eight feet from floor to ceiling.

There are seven dwellings of three rooms, forty-seven dwellings of two rooms, and three dwellings of one room; besides a porter's tenement and office, and a co-operative store. The building is being erected by Messrs. W. Cubitt and Co., from the designs of H. A. Darbishire, Esq.

The occupants will pay rents according to the size and accommodation of their dwellings, but these will be fixed at a rate so low that the poorest of the industrious class—i. e., those whose wages range from 12s. to 22s. per week—may be able to pay them without being compelled to sacrifice their comfort and privacy by taking lodgers. No tenants will be allowed to sublet his rooms under any pretext whatever.

This point has been insisted on as one of primary importance by those who have so largely benefited the poor of Bethnal-green and Westminster, and the benevolent founder of the present building regards it in the same light. A system prevails, and is sanctioned even in so-called "model" lodging-houses, which effectually prevents the domestic condition of the poor from being materially and permanently improved. Dwellings being scarce, the poor workman must take what he can get and pay the exorbitant demands of the principal landlord at the price of any sacrifice to himself. Though he would enjoy privacy at home if he could secure it at a moderate cost, it is not essential to his existence, and he regards it as a luxury which is beyond his means; he therefore takes as many lodgers as his dwelling will hold, and by the help which they afford he is able to pay his rent at the end of the week. If the working man is to be comfortable, he must have his home, large or small, all to himself; if he is to know the meaning of the word decency, he must learn it in his own family; and if he is to enjoy this comfort and acquire this decency, he must be assisted as far as possible by those who provide his dwelling-place. All who improve the habitations of the poor by any means whatever are benefactors, but those who can improve them upon such terms as shall secure improvement in the habits and feelings of their occupants achieve the greatest good and produce the most lasting benefit.

In order that the tenants may be benefited in the present instance, and that the revenues of the building may yield a fair return upon its cost, advantage has been taken of its favourable situation, and shops have been introduced to increase the income, and to share a portion of the working expenses.

After all charges upon the revenue have been paid, the surplus will be set aside to accumulate, and when a sufficiently large sum has been provided by this means, the trustees will extend their work and erect other buildings in other districts requiring their assistance. Thus, the original fund will be ever increasing and ever extending its usefulness, and the poor by deriving benefit themselves will confer benefit upon their class.

LONDON: ITS ASSOCIATION WITH INTELLECT.—Milton wrote his Paradise Lost and other poems, and the prose works to which all Englishmen—yes, and the world at large—are so much indebted for the inestimable and precious rights and liberties they now enjoy; followed and assisted by Daniel Defoe, who here wrote his Free Born Englishman, and numerous other works of a similar nature, in addition to his Robinson Crusoe; Shakspeare, most, if not all of his plays; Johnson and Goldsmith here sojourned, the former to compile his English Dictionary, with Mrs. Piozzi for his amanuensis, and herein wrote the Rambler; and Goldsmith his Deserted Village, and other works, in the room of a house over Breakneck-steps, Old Bailey. And in London Bacon wrote his Novum Organum; and Newton here conceived, and fully carried out his enlightened philosophy in the same atmosphere; and innumerable are the instances of what has been accomplished by the mind of man, conceived and cogitated over by men walking along our busy streets, in and between the numerous pedestrians, and the hum, clatter, and whirl of the waggons, omnibuses, carts, cabs, and other carriages that throng the roadway.

We pause sometimes in a path to scan our own footprints, but it is too late to remodel or to retrace them.

This arrangement has been made with the view of introducing in the Southern Hemisphere (simultaneously with the English and Continental cities) every new feature or variation in fabric or fashion as may from time to time emanate from the principal schools of design or manufactories of Europe.

Their endeavours are specially directed to the importation of FIRST-CLASS GOODS, to meet the exigencies of their vast and increasing family trade.

Possessing immense advantages in the home markets, they are justified in stating that they are now submitting in EVERY DEPARTMENT the most comprehensive assortment in the colonies, at prices very little in advance of those charged by London houses.

Attention and inspection of the REMOVAL of CHARLES RUSH and CO.'S DRAPERY ESTABLISHMENT.

Charles Rush and Co., Wilshire-buildings, Brickfield-hill, beg to notify to their numerous customers and the public generally their intention to transfer their business to more extensive premises than those at present in use by them. The great increase in their business has rendered this necessary, and induced them to secure the capacious warehouse and stores formerly occupied by Mr. J. W. Hancock, and situated at No 618, Brickfield-hill, seven doors north of their present premises, which they intend opening on SATURDAY next, 10th instant.

C. R. and Co. refrain on the present occasion, as they have always hitherto done, in indulging in any specious puffery—a resort to which they have never found either necessary or desirable, and are content to announce that having recently become purchasers of large shipments of first-class goods of every description, on most advantageous terms, they will be prepared to offer the same on Saturday next, at prices which must secure an extensive demand for the same.

CHARLES RUSH and CO., No. 618, Brickfield-hill (seven doors north of their former premises).

FARMER and PAINTER, in respectfully announcing the arrival and opening of their shipments of Spring and Summer GOODS, would take this opportunity of acquainting those ladies who only visit Sydney occasionally of their particular method of doing business. An explanation of this is rendered all the more necessary at the present time because many ladies, whose stay in Sydney is limited, are quite at a loss to where they should make their purchases in drapery consequent on the extraordinary advertisements which crowd the columns of the daily papers, nearly every one of which calls attention to the advertiser as selling a better article, and at a lower price than any other house in the colony.

FARMER and PAINTER, of Victoria House, have long been known by the ladies of Sydney, and of the colony generally, as importers of first-class drapery merchandise, for the especial requirements of their numerous patrons, and they have at all times studied to conduct their business, as it ought to be conducted, with a view of giving none other than a universal satisfaction. In keeping with their establishment, FARMER and PAINTER have always avoided those periodical sellings off, which have become quite a feature in the Sydney retail trade, knowing, as they do, that their patrons are well aware of their custom of reducing at the end of each season those goods which have been left over; and so well has this system worked, that FARMER and PAINTER can safely say they have now less old stock than perhaps ever fell to the lot of any house of such magnitude.

FARMER and PAINTER have much pleasure and confidence in soliciting the attention of ladies and gentlemen to their present general STOCK, which is now fully replete in all the various departments of their establishment.

Woolloomooloo Steam Saw and Moulding Mills, Dowling-street, Woolloomooloo.

THURSDAY, 12th November, at 3 o'clock.
On the Premises.

L. E. THRELKELD and CO. have been instructed to sell by auction, on the Premises, Dowling-street, Woolloomooloo Bay, on THURSDAY, 12th November, at 3 o'clock (if not previously disposed of by private contract),
The premises known as the Woolloomooloo Steam Saw and Moulding Mills.
This important property is well and favourably known as one possessed of every requisite for a large and profitable trade, while from its compactness and the improvements which have been constantly introduced into the machinery, can be worked at considerably less cost than any similar establishment where an equal amount of work is turned out. In its arrangement everything has been done with a view to the saving of labour, and the promptness with which orders to any extent may be executed.
It consists of a large block of freehold land, having a frontage of 180 feet to Dowling-street, 180 feet to Duke-street, and 100 feet to a reserved lane leading from one to the other, and being in the immediate vicinity of the new circular quay, Woolloomooloo Bay, which is now all but completed. It may be truly said to be in a position not to be surpassed in the whole city.
The plant, which is complete in every part, has been laid down at a very great cost, and is throughout of the best description.
A 3 ton derrick is so placed on the wharf as to be available for putting every log of timber either on to the saw pits or the traversing carriages, which latter run along a line of rails laid down through the premises, branching off to each machine, when with very trifling hand labour it is deposited and carried off again when sawn, in like manner.
The buildings consist of a two-story range 57 x 26, beneath which on the ground floor are the saw tables and frames as follows:—
A saw table by Parsons, with feed motion and all the latest improvements, one of the best in the colony.
A smaller saw bench for jobbing work.
A vertical log frame, in which from 15 to 25 saws are worked, and
A vertical deal frame, which cuts from 1500 to 2000 feet a day.
On the first floor of the range is—
A very superior tonguing and groving machine, with a great variety of irons for every conceivable style of moulding, imported from England at a large cost, and greatly improved since it has been in use.
A moulding machine for joiners' work, sashes and small mouldings, with all the necessary irons.
An improved tenoning machine.
A morticing machine.
A boring machine.
A saw-bench for ripping out joiners' work; and an upright gig saw, with saddle, for cutting chair backs.
The second floor is a large carpenter's shop, well lighted, fitted up with 10 benches, fixed and otherwise, and an apparatus for heating glue by steam.
The engine-house is conveniently situated at the end of this building, and contains a 20 horse-power engine of the best construction, made by P. N. Russell and Co., with 25 horse flue boiler, diameter of cylinder 16 inches, length of stroke 30 inches, and attached to it a water heating apparatus, by which the getting up of steam is greatly facilitated. The economy with which the furnace is fired is worthy of special consideration, no other fuel being used to keep in motion all the machinery on the premises than saw dust, shavings, &c., and a very small quantity of the smallest coal screenings.
Attached to the engine-house is the fitting shop and blacksmith's forge, fitted with bellows, anvil, and all the necessary tools for keeping everything in repair, and adjoining is the saw sharpener's shop, in which is a superior screw punch and a full complement of saws, both circular and vertical, sufficient for all the requirements of the establishment.
Above this is the turners' shop, fitted with four good lathes and a small saw bench for cross cutting for the turners.
At the other end of the yard is the box makers' shop, 52 x 23, and above it a cabinet makers' shop the same size, also fitted with carpenters' benches, &c.
Adjoining is a store 45 x 22, for finished joiners' and cabinet makers' work, and in the same range are the turnery store, door and sash store, and the moulding racks.
There are also extensive covered racks for drying cedar, capable of holding a very large quantity of boards, making the whole one of the most complete establishments of its size in the colony. It being in full operation at the present moment is a guarantee that it is in perfect working order, the belting in nearly every instance having been lately renewed. The trade attached to it too is of considerable importance, the work turned out being known all over the country as of a superior description; and the large amount of business done both in the time of the late proprietors, and during the last two years down to the present hour is a sufficient indication of what the mills are capable, and of the requirement there is for them in the eastern portion of the town. But if they be required now how much more so will they be, on the completion of the new Circular Quay, which will take place before the end of the present year, when the vast space of ground now being reclaimed shall be devoted to the erection of warehouses, shops, and dwellings, which will be needed immediately the wharf is thrown open for use. The extension of King-street, which is fully determined on, will abut on to the property, thus bringing it into the very heart of the town, increasing tenfold its value for all business purposes.
Such an opportunity as the present is rarely met with to obtain a valuable saw mills plant in an eligible situation, with a first-class trade and connection, ready made, to hand, and as it was formerly purchased under peculiar circumstances at less than its original cost, so now will it be sold regardless of its real value.
The terms will be of the most liberal character, one half the purchase money being allowed to remain chargeable on the property at 7 per cent., and the remainder in easy payments.

PRELIMINARY ADVERTISEMENT.

THE ASH ISLAND ESTATE,
RIVER HUNTER.

Beyond doubt one of the very
FINEST AGRICULTURAL and HORTICULTURAL ESTATES in the AUSTRALIAN COLONIES.

MORT and CO. have received instructions from the Honorable A. W. Scott, Esq., to sell by public auction, at Newcastle, on an early date, of which due notice will be given,

The whole of the
TRULY MAGNIFICENT ESTATE, known as
ASH ISLAND,
comprising an area of 2841 ACRES, with many miles river frontage to the River Hunter, distant only 4½ MILES FROM NEWCASTLE, and including the homestead, with gardens, orangery, extensive cultivation, grass and other lands, and a large number of farms, many of which are enclosed, cleared, and have convenient buildings upon them.

This splendid property has been recently most carefully surveyed and subdivided, and it will be sold in farms to suit all classes of purchasers. The object of the present preliminary advertisement is simply to announce the fact that it will shortly be submitted to public competition, in order that all who may be on the look-out for homesteads, may avail themselves of an opportunity, the like of which has never before been presented to them.
TO THE AGRICULTURAL INTEREST

Among the many claims which the Ash Island Estate possesses, entitling it to be looked upon as one of the finest estates in the colonies, the following few are sufficient for the present purpose.

1. THE SOIL is composed of RICH ALLUVIAL deposit, and is capable of producing, to any extent, large and profitable crops of ALL KINDS OF FRUITS, the ORANGE being pre-eminent—of MAIZE, LUCERNE, OATS, ALL KINDS OF VEGETABLES, and COTTON—the growth of the latter being particularly vigorous.

2. The FACILITIES OF WATER and LAND CARRIAGE are as great as could possibly be wished for. The estate has a vast extent of frontage to the river Hunter, with any extent of deep water, to enable vessels to load direct from the spot. On the other hand, the GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY passes along the adjacent river bank, at the back of the estate, and secures the most perfect land carriage.

3. ITS PROXIMITY TO NEWCASTLE (the second great shipping port of New South Wales), to East and West Maitland, Raymond Terrace, and Morpeth, and particularly ensures a ready market for all kinds of produce—further secured by the facilities for export to all the markets and seaports of New South Wales and the adjacent colonies.
TO THE NUMEROUS COLLIERIES,

4. THE COAL.—From various experiments at different places, made by careful boring, coal of excellent quality has been invariably found, showing that the seam underlying the whole island would probably prove a good working one, and, from the position, well adapted for inexpensive shipment, no engineering difficulty existing, and deep water frontage along the river banks.

5. The Estate is NOT LIABLE TO BE FLOODED—a very material feature to all who have had any experience of farming in this colony.

With these few facts before them, all who are in want of a farm, or home for their families, are invited to avail themselves of the forthcoming opportunity.

Full particulars will be shortly published, including terms and day of sale.

Large plan and lithographs in course of preparation.

Important Sale at Albury, of Cattle, Horses, and Station, on the River Murray, in New South Wales.
By direction of David Bruce Hutchinson, Esq., Curator of Intestate Estates, and Trustee of the Settlement made by Mr. George Mole, late of Talmalmo, deceased.

S. C. V. NORTH has been instructed by the Curator of Intestate Estates, to sell by public auction, at Botterill's Imperial Hotel, Albury, on WEDNESDAY, the 21st day of October, at 12 o'clock.

These cattle and horses are now running at Talmalmo Station. They will be collected by the purchaser, who will be allowed thirty-five days for the purpose. To parties in want of a nice, quiet herd of cattle, the auctioneer can recommend this lot; and as no draft of fat stock has been taken from the herd for many months, there should now be a great number in fine condition.
